Quebec: Fight Is On

Perrault 'Test' Of U.S. Control

CRANBROOK (CP) — New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas voiced a welcome Tuesday for Ray Perrault, who is expected to resign today as B.C. Liberal leader to oppose Douglas for the Burnaby-Seymour seat in the June 25 election.

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Perrault would be a good candidate who would provide Burnaby-Seymour voters with an opportunity to express their feelings about growing American control of the Canadian economy.

"Mr. Perrault is one of the Liberals who was most responsible at the Winnipeg (Liberals) conference for shooting down Walter Gordon's proposals for curtailing the growing American controls of our economy," he added.

MONTREAL (CP) — The pattern for the June 25 election campaign fight in Quebec was set Tuesday by Prime Minister Trudeau, Premier Johnson and Marcel Faribault, the Quebec premier's constitutional and economics adviser — who announced he will be a Progressive Conservative candidate.

As Faribault and Conservative leader Stanfield made the announcement here, Trudeau was launching a vigorous attack on the Johnson-Faribault theories of international relationships.

Freed Miners Joke

Hours Late For Supper

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — A tiny bucket-like hoist completed a four-hour rescue operation shortly before 9 p.m. ADT Tuesday, bringing the last of 49 coalminers safely to the surface of the Drummond Coal Co. mine here.

The men, cold and damp but unhurt, had been trapped by a large fall of stone as they were travelling out of the mine at the end of their shift. They walked about a mile underground to reach an air shaft through which they escaped — three at a time — in the hoisting device.

The rescue ended another hours for the residents of this Pictou County town. The miners themselves grined through coal-blackened faces and joked about being late for supper.

One said "there's nothing to it—we're all out." The mine is expected to be out of production for about one week.

Hundreds of townspeople and residents of nearby New Glasgow and Stellarton gathered near a fan house at the top of the air shaft as the men were brought up, about three every 15 minutes.

The fall of stone occurred at considerable distance from where the men were working.

Gem Jam

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — Rescue workers are continuing efforts to save 23 men trapped in a cave-in at a precious stone mine at Hualien.

Police said that, if the men are brought out alive, they will be taken directly to jail for entering the mine without permission. The mine owner filed a robbery charge against the men.

Burmese Cyclone Kills 837

AKYAB, Burma (Reuters) — The death toll in Burma's worst-known storm disaster rose to 837 Tuesday as government relief parties pushed into five towns along the devastated Bay of Bengal coast.

Casualty and damage reports are still awaited from other regions along a 20-mile stretch of coast struck Friday by a cyclone with winds of more than 120 miles an hour, plus 15-foot tidal waves.

Past Disasters Near

The pit is the last working coal mine in this Pictou County town of 4,000, about 100 road-miles northeast of Halifax. It employs about 100, including surface workers.

The Pictou field is about 75 miles east of the Cumberland coalfield, struck by major disasters in 1956 and 1958. Thirty-nine men were killed in No. 4 colliery in Springhill in 1956 and 75 died in No. 2 colliery in 1958. Both were subsequently closed.

The miners had been on their way out of the mine by way of the main slope when the fall occurred. Although they were some distance from the fall, they knew immediately something was wrong because the underground power failed and the electric "man rake" on which they were travelling ground to a halt.

Hundreds of relatives, friends and neighbors, flocked to the mine fearing "another Springhill."

They were reassured, however, when the first miners came to the surface and explained there had been no injuries, and it was only a matter of time before they were all safely out.

"What's all the excitement about?" miner Fred Doucette asked. "There's nothing out of the ordinary happening. It was just a routine fall and all the men knew they had the second way out."

'All Bombing Must Stop'

Restraint Refused

PARIS (AP) — A spokesman for North Vietnam's chief envoy at the Vietnam peace talks said Tuesday "no ransom will be paid to the American aggressor" for an end to all U.S. attacks on the North.

Thus the North Vietnamese diplomat, Xuan Thuy, made known a refusal to yield to U.S. requests that North Vietnam show restraint in return for a complete bombing pause.

"The United States must stop all bombing," his spokesman Nguyen Van Sao, said reporters as the negotiations took a break after the opening session Monday. (See also Page 18.)

Meanwhile, Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, the American negotiator, said he has been "hard at work with a microscope," going over Thuy's opening policy statements of Monday. "We have got to find some basis on which to move ahead."

The negotiators today go into the second round of their talks in France's International Conference Centre.

The Hanoi spokesman also asserted it was a U.S. "blunder" to say North Vietnamese were fighting in South Vietnam. Asked about this, Harriman replied that the presence of North Vietnamese in South Vietnam has been established — some have been captured and added: "I don't know why they keep up this fiction."

Comment and action bearing on the Paris talks came from these capitals:

● In Washington, President Johnson acknowledged Harriman's team faces "very hard negotiations."

● In Moscow, the state radio cited a Soviet Communist Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung told Thuy he considered "it was erroneous that Hanoi agreed to meet" the Americans. So far, Peking's information organs have blacked out all word of the talks.

U.K., Russia to Talk Of Full Conference

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Diplomatic observers said Tuesday Russia and Britain may agree to sponsor an international Vietnam peace conference if the U.S.-North Vietnamese talks in Paris go well.

They said this might be the reason for a three-day visit to Moscow starting May 22 by British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart. The visit was announced Tuesday in London and Moscow.

Pickets Block Rally

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

VANCOUVER — Bill 33 became the dominant topic at a Social Credit election rally which was held outdoors here Tuesday night after picketers barred entrance to a nearby high school auditorium.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson took the spotlight away from Premier Bennett and other cabinet ministers as the meeting, attended by 733 shivering Vancouver South residents, wound up in less than an hour. (See also Page 24, 36.)

The government's controversial mediation act was brought up when a heckler called on Mr. Peterson to talk about the strike of custodian engineers which had tied up 22 local high schools.

"If that's why we're here tonight," Mr. Peterson said.

Major Issue

He said Bill 33 was a major issue in the provincial by-election because "this much-maligned piece of legislation" was designed to bring stability to labor-management relations in B.C.

Only the government in the legislature, and Social Credit candidate George Walborn in the by-election contest, supported the bill, the minister reminded the audience.

"Those who opposed it — the NDP and the Liberals — must of necessity be in favor of a monopoly of labor or a monopoly of management being able to paralyze the economy of this province," Mr. Peterson said.

It's Simple

"Those who oppose this bill must of necessity say the government has no right to protect the interest of the public or the welfare of the people of this province."

"It's as simple as that." A heckler in the crowd shouted, "And H. R. MacMillan!"

Mr. Peterson said the government represented no pressure group, but rather all the people, "including labor and management."

"If you want government by big labor, or by a teacher federation that seems to have a lot of money to spend these days, then vote for the opposition."

"But if you want government that represents all the people and will deal fairly with all segments of the economy, I would suggest you vote next Tuesday for George Walborn." Introducing Premier Bennett.

Nebraska Kennedy's Crusher

Sweeping victory in Nebraska Democratic presidential primary was scored Tuesday by Robert Kennedy, shown during brief morning campaign foray into Davenport, Iowa. He crushed chief rival Eugene McCarthy, getting 53 per cent of votes to McCarthy's 31. On Republican side, Richard Nixon scored solid 70 per cent to surprising 23 per cent for Ronald Reagan and only 5 per cent for Nelson Rockefeller. Next primary is in Oregon May 28.

Demands Being Met

Students Take Over French Universities

PARIS (AP) — Flying the red-and-black flags of rebellion and anarchy, students occupied most of France's 15 universities Tuesday in a seizure that Premier Georges Pompidou called an international plot and a "trial of our civilization."

Shaken by the rebellion and a censure motion, Pompidou went before the National Assembly with offers of new concessions to the students. Virtually all their original demands were met. (See also Page 31.)

Referring to the seizures and rioting last week in the Latin Quarter of Paris, the premier said the rebellion involves "individuals, backed by important financial means, with material adapted to street fighting, apparently belonging to an international organization."

MEETING DISRUPTED

"I do not think I am straying in thinking they are aiming at not only creating subversion in Western countries, but at causing trouble in Paris even at the moment when our capital has become the meeting place for peace in the Far East."

Closed during last week's rioting here, the Sorbonne reopened Tuesday, but students had no classes. They placed red-and-black flags in the hands of statues of Louis Pasteur and Victor Hugo, called for revolution and listened to a youth playing jazz on a grand piano set up in the Sorbonne's courtyard.

FREE FLEE

A "committee of occupation" ran the school with the help of sympathetic faculty members. The committee demanded that the Sorbonne be made a free university for all, that final exams be cancelled, that police be charged with brutality in putting down student protests, that the workers' and students' struggle be stepped up and that the university have an hour of time on the state-run television network.

In Strasbourg, students seized

the university buildings and proclaimed "The Autonomous University of Strasbourg."

Everywhere police remained in the background. Pompidou acknowledged there were some good reasons behind the disorder.

He said: "Already I have decided to call on a 'committee for reflection' which will include representatives of professors, students, parents, teachers and personalities representing all the spiritual families which we will ask to furnish us with suggestions, at least experiments."

He said he thought one possibility was greater autonomy for the universities which now are under a tight centralized control from Paris.

UBC Near Heart Transplant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Surgeons at the University of B.C. are ready to perform a human heart transplant but are waiting for ideal conditions, a member of the UBC heart surgery team says.

Dr. Philip Ashmore of the UBC department of surgery said the team has been studying recent transplant operations and is in close contact with the heart transplant team at Stanford University, California. (See also Page 17, 21.)

For over 63 years our distillery has produced many fine whiskies... for all parts of Canada and 116 other countries. So why produce one whisky just for British Columbia? That's what we asked ourselves. So we decided to let Double Distilled die. Stop promoting it, we reasoned, and it will disappear. Then replace it with a national brand. Logical. But it didn't work that way. Even though we tried to ignore Double Distilled, we found that several thousand British Columbians were still demanding it. Now this is popularity you can't ignore, so we're going to make the most of it. From now on you'll be hearing about the unsurpassed quality and value of British Columbia's own whisky — B.C. Romanians Cheer de Gaulle

By HANS BENEDICT

BUCHAREST (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Romanians cheered President de Gaulle on his arrival here Tuesday. And he told them what they wanted to hear in their quarrelling with the Soviet Union, stressing national freedom from any power bloc.

The French president was greeted by the Romanian President and Communist party leader, Nicolae Ceausescu, who in welcoming remarks picked up de Gaulle's theme of small-power independence.

"What Romania and France must do, and can do, to contribute to the grandeur of Europe and therefore to the world's grandeur will be the subject of our conversation," de Gaulle told an airport audience.

Obviously referring to Romania's policy tending toward political and economic independence from Moscow, de Gaulle said Romania's friendship with France "is more important today than ever before as Europe is beginning to re-establish itself in the independence of each of its nations."

Some of the wildest cheers came when he suddenly threw up his arms and said in memorized Romanian: "I bring you, my dear friends, the best wishes of the French people who greet you from the bottom of their hearts."

MILITARY BLOC
Ceausescu told de Gaulle that French policies of broadening international co-operation "contribute to the promotion of the principle of national freedom and sovereignty in international relations."

He said his regime highly appreciates France's attitude on "various international issues"—an apparent reference to de Gaulle's campaign for abolition of military blocs, which Romania endorses as a member of the Warsaw Pact alliance.

De Gaulle and Ceausescu will hold two formal meetings today and Saturday, after the French president returns to the capital from a two-day provincial tour.

PRIVATE TALK
They will confer privately on major questions while French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Romanian Deputy Foreign Minister Gheorghe Macoveanu discuss details of economic and cultural co-operation.

Elaborate arrangements for the visit brought out hundreds of thousands of shirt-sleeved Romanians into the streets in shimmering heat along the six-mile route from Banescu Airport to de Gaulle's residence at a government guest house.

The people shouted Long live de Gaulle! and "Long live Romanian-French friendship!"

Radiation Worries

Japan Bans U.S. Subs

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said Tuesday he has told U.S. Admiral Grant Sharp that his government cannot let any more American nuclear submarines visit Japanese ports unless they are confirmed as harmless.

Sharp is U.S. commander-in-chief in the Pacific.

Japan asked the U.S. Monday to keep its nuclear subs away until investigators clear up suspicions that one of them, the 2,360-ton Sordfish, contaminated waters of the port of Sasebo May 6.

ABNORMAL COUNT

Japanese monitors reported they detected an abnormal radioactivity—10 to 20 times higher than usual—in a choppy sea around the Sordfish that day. The Sordfish was at Sasebo, 550 miles southwest of Tokyo May 2-11 for a rest and recreation leave for the crew.

Although the May 6 reading was far below what is considered the danger level to human beings, it has set off a chain reaction that has embarrassed the Sato government, stirred fears and suspicion among Japanese super-sensitive to nuclear weapons, and become a talking point for leftist forces opposing U.S. nuclear-powered ships visiting Japan.

GRAVE UNEASINESS

Sato said he told Sharp and U.S. Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson that his people feel grave uneasiness over the incident.

The U.S. state department said in Washington it is satisfied that the increase was not caused by the Sordfish. But it said it is sending a three-man mission to investigate.

A Second Front

STEMMING FROM WHAT BRITISH correspondents in Paris characterize as a series of blunders by the government and police, France today is torn by the most serious revolt of the Left ever faced by the 10-year-old Fifth Republic of General Charles de Gaulle.

Once the idol of his people, the president must have been shocked to learn that in a march of thousands of students, workers and men and women of all classes Monday, the continuing chant was "De Gaulle assassin!" The mob shrieked for his resignation.

Overshadowed by other news from Paris, where United States and North Vietnamese emissaries are meeting in the hope of finding a formula for peace in the Far East, word of the mounting crisis astonished the world. Student unrest and agitation had been common but more or less confined to the radical Left, until the coming of the peace delegations, which seemingly brought a chain reaction of protest aimed at the embarrassment of the Americans.

That, at least, is one explanation.

In any event, the small fires of protest have spread widely and swiftly into what can only be described as a revolt against all authority, including President de Gaulle himself.

At the heart of this rebellion stands Daniel Cohn-Bendit, a student of German-Jewish origins, who leads an anarchist group following the doctrines of Mao Tse-tung at the Nanterre annex of the Paris University. His revolutionary fervor had been largely ineffective until, on May 2, his "political commandos" staged their anti-imperialist demonstration and clashed with right-wing students. Cohn-Bendit was halted before a disciplinary committee, and the university faculties were ordered closed.

That brought the Sorbonne students out in support of the Nanterre group, and the first grave mistake of the authorities.

Black-uniformed Civil Guards were ordered to the Sorbonne to forcibly eject student militants from the university's central courtyard.

The action brought the powerful National Union of French Students to the support of Cohn-Bendit and his Sorbonne allies, and in its train teachers, thousands of younger students, trade unions and the two great Opposition parties, the Communists and the Socialist Federation of the Left—and, of course, hundreds of trained, professional agitators.

That is the sequence that led to Monday's general strike call—but it was not the success its backers had expected.

If this is a sign that a large part of the people has come to its senses, realizing it has been misled by the volatile Left and encouraged by governmental mistakes, it does not mean the crisis is over.

At the time of writing strong police forces still guard the 19 bridges which link the Left Bank with the other side of the Seine, seeking to prevent a march to the Majestic Hotel by the mixed militants, workers and students, where they had hoped to demonstrate for the benefit of the North Vietnamese and United States emissaries.

It is an ugly situation and creates an atmosphere hazing the peace talks as well as the tranquility of the nation.

Inadvertently or not, the marchers and rioters have become the allies of Chairman Mao in his desire to prolong the war in Vietnam and spread the communism of his pattern far and wide. They have created a "second front" in Europe.

Veterans' Care

A REMARKABLE FACT cited in the Agnew, Peckham hospitals report is that in the Victoria district of the veterans affairs department, the proportion of war veterans to total male population is the highest in Canada, at 41.8 per cent. The report also notes that 85 per cent of the ex-servicemen using Veterans Hospital were in the First World War—"The impact of World War II veterans has not yet been felt."

These are indicators of the continuing need of special hospital care for veterans in the Victoria region, and it is by no means surprising therefore that Mr. Carl Fallas, a former zone commander of the Canadian Legion, has expressed concern that the Veterans Hospital might be "handed over" to another hospital. Mr. Fallas would like Prime Minister Trudeau to back up Prime Minister Pearson's pledges of 1964 that there would be no change which would remove control of veterans' admissions and their treatment and their domiciliary care from the DVA, nor any changes without full consultation with veterans' organizations in the areas affected.

It should be observed, however, that what may be in prospect, as a result of the Agnew, Peckham report, is not exactly a "handing over"—not in the sense that it would deprive veterans of their hospital accommodation.

The report recommends that study be given to the possibility of integrating the facilities for the care of veterans more closely with those of the Royal Jubilee Hospital. The aim would be, quoting Veterans Affairs Minister Roger Teillet on the general subject and not the Victoria instance, to maintain excellence by making the treatment of veterans an integral part of a larger, more active, more on-going operation.

But in leading up to the recommendation, the report gives full attention to the stipulation of the minister that agreements will not be made with other agencies for the operational control of veterans' hospitals without certain conditions being met.

The first of these is that accommodation for the treatment of service-connected disabilities among veterans must be immediately available at all times and treatments be in accordance with DVA standards. And the report says, in Victoria the Veterans Affairs Department "would like assurance of 300 beds for veterans, including a certain number for domiciliary care." (Veterans Hospital is shown as having 288 beds set up, 164 for active treatment and 124 for extended care.)

As long as the beds available to veterans were not reduced—including the domiciliary accommodation which especially for First World War veterans is much needed—veterans' organizations might very well support the "closer integration" with Royal Jubilee Hospital suggested in the report. It is important, however, that they be kept in the picture if and when negotiations commence, and that Mr. Pearson's pledge of consultation be honored.

European Refugees: The End of an Era

By THOMAS LAND from London

WHEN you live in a refugee camp, you either go wild or put your mind to something constructive. Otherwise you die inside. Showing me his wealth, a 30-year-old carpenter, farmer and former political prisoner told me this in a Second World War bunker he had made into a poultry farm.

Joseph B. had celebrated five birthdays at Lager Asten in upper Austria when I visited him there shortly after World Refugee year. He had built up a farm of 100 chickens and a home-made incubator, and his neighbors thought him a rich man. He shared a single room with his wife and the incubator in a huge wooden barrack built, steeped in the smell of years of Hungarian cooking and housing dozens of other families.

There were the young who had crossed the Iron Curtain unaccompanied in their early teens. Some of them grew up wild in the camp and took to violent crime and prostitution. There were the very old — a legacy from the 1939-45 war and previous disasters — incapable of making even minor decisions for themselves. Most of those who had the emotional strength to put their minds to something constructive had emigrated or settled down to re-make their lives outside the camp. Mr. B. was ill with tuberculosis.

The interned nations raised over $100 million during World Refugee Year in 1939-40 for the resettlement of the remaining one million European refugees. Lager Asten has been burned down since then, together with hundreds of similar camps.

What remains today is merely a handful of reception, transit and processing centres in Austria, Germany and Italy where the new arrivals stay only for a few weeks or days. But outside Europe there remain close to 16 million refugees — and their numbers are growing.

Europe's refugee era, a phase of misery for millions of uprooted lives, has thus come to an end. There are still some 6,000 people dependent on international aid. But for many of them solutions are already being arranged, primarily through the provision of housing partly financed by the United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR). This organization is currently trying to arrange migration opportunities for a small residual group of severely handicapped refugees in Europe and around the Mediterranean Basin. Of the 400 refugees in this group, medical experts believe some 150 could be successfully settled.

Canada, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland have approved a variety of special schemes for their resettlement. Australia and New Zealand are reviewing the desirability of all refugees previously rejected. Belgium, France and the Netherlands have indicated their intention of taking part in the project, and Britain has promised to consider sympathetically the admission of a small number of handicapped refugees.

Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, the man in charge of the UN refugee agency, describes the final, critical group as "men and women who have been waiting 10 or 15 years for a chance to start a new life and whose problems are as unsolved today as they were when they first asked for help."

Five years ago UNHCR had every single person in the residual group wishing to migrate re-interviewed and examined, recording all relevant information about his physical and mental condition. As a result of the final screening, which includes psychiatric evaluations, some 400 families have been accepted for immigration—often by the same countries which had rejected them on the basis of less comprehensive data.

UNHCR provides the case history of Stanislaw M., who arrived in Italy in 1933 suffering from tuberculosis. He spent nearly 10 years in various camps and sanatoria, during which he developed religious hallucinations. Sweden rejected him for immigration in 1960.

Three years later he was re-examined and the UNHCR's specialist recorded: "The obsessional aspects of his personality structure need not interfere with his gainful employment and need not at any time bring him to a state in which hospitalization is necessary."

Some months later, largely on the basis of the new evaluation, Sweden accepted him. He was for a while detained in a mental hospital. Now, aged 47, Mr. M. is employed as a machine operator. He has a small modern apartment. Recently he travelled abroad, on his own, for a holiday.

He is working on a book about his experience in the camps. It is to be called "Yesterday's Reality, Today a Dream."

By FRANK LOWE

IT is a thought-provoking spectacle, this earnest effort so many officials at various government levels are making to protect the taxpayer from the evils of Mayor Jean Drapeau's proposed lottery.

In Ottawa, in Scarborough, in Quebec, mayors and attorneys-general and ministers of justice are all upset because Drapeau has dreamed up a scheme which he hopes will enrich Montreal's treasury without outraging the city's taxpayers.

This makes any taxpayer, whether he lives in Montreal or Victoria, chuckle a little. Because these same officials, now shaking with outrage, are the same officials who have been dreaming up new ways to bilk the taxpayers for years.

The name of the game in politics has been gouge, or so it seems the last little while.

My theory is that these government officials aren't really outraged at all. The alleged immorality of the Montreal lottery doesn't disturb them one iota.

What they are really furious about is that it might work, and Drapeau might get his needed millions without causing a single taxpayer to flinch.

This would certainly leave other mayors and reeves and premiers and prime ministers with something to think about. Many people, indeed might think about it to such an extent that they could come to the conclusion that Drapeau is a smarter man than the particular multi-head they elected.

So naturally all those who didn't think of the lottery idea first must put on a fine show of being against anything so immoral and patently illegal. It's the old political rule—if you didn't originate it, knock it.

Frankly, I don't think a lottery has ever solved the financial difficulties of any city, or any country. Somehow the machinery of the lottery grows and grows until it costs almost as much to run the thing as is collected.

But that is no valid reason for saying Drapeau shouldn't be allowed to try his own type of lottery. It just might be the exception that proves the rule.

Even if it doesn't work, no one is going to be burned. High-winders and those whose gambling urge is uncontrollable will be able to get a piece of the action for a two-buck fee.

So if the lottery does blow up, there will be mighty few widows and orphans weeping in the rain.

Mind you, as a guy who plans to toss the occasional deuce into the pot—just to see what might happen—I can't say that Drapeau has been unduly generous.

Any honest racetrack operator on the principle that 80 cents of every dollar invested is returned to the investor. Drapeau's lottery, according to the prizes listed, will return about six cents for every dollar invested.

But who cares? If a fellow wants to invest two dollars so he can spend a month dreaming about what he will do when he wins that $100,000 jackpot, who's to say he can't?

(Incidentally, I know what I will do when I win that $100,000. I'm going to pay all my debts and start over again.)

Anyway, the Drapeau lottery should have its chance. And the hypocritical officials should stop trying to pretend that they want to protect you and me from the evils of gambling.

The movement of North Korea to a more independent line

China's reaction to the Pueblo crisis is in sharp contrast to her response to the Indus-Pakistan war of 1965 and the Middle East crisis of 1967. In both of these cases the risk to China was minimal and so its propaganda trumpets were sounded very loudly.

On other events nearer home, Peking has shown characteristic caution. A case in point was last year's disturbances in Hong Kong. The Chinese foreign affairs ministry made no comment at all until more than a week after the start of strikes and demonstrations.

Since Early 1966

China, North Korea Show Signs of Rift

By EDWARD NEILAN from Hong Kong

COMMUNIST China's response to the whole Pueblo affair has been marked by restraint.

This restraint is believed to reflect correctly the cool relations between Peking and North Korea. It is also a sign of Communist China's caution in avoiding any kind of involvement in incidents close to its own borders.

It is always a dangerous undertaking to try to fathom the degree of animosity or strain between various Communist nations and regimes. Sometimes the exercise is merely academic; at other times the fine side of the wedge may expose a rift of considerable importance.

Observers in this listening post on China's doorstep began to note signs of a rift between China and North Korea at the beginning of 1966.

Relations nosedived further in 1967 when Red Guard posters in Peking, Canton and Shanghai lambasted North Korean boss Kim Il-Sung.

Communist China's official media did not report the Jan. 23 seizure of the Pueblo by North Korea until three days after the hijacking.

On the other hand, the Soviet Union and North Vietnam both noted the capture right away, on Jan. 24.

The New China News Agency (NCNA) finally reported the seizure on Jan. 26 in a brief and factual item.

By the time the Chinese government issued a formal statement on the case, it was already clear that a diplomatic settlement would be sought.

The implication of China's statement was that Peking wanted North Korea to take a firm line, but without involving China.

Further press coverage from Peking has been less than might be expected from North Korea's staunchest Korean War ally.

The Peking People's Daily of Jan. 29 published a series of photographs depicting the crew of the Pueblo coming ashore and one of the officers allegedly writing his confession.

Peking indifference was underscored by a People's Daily commentary on Feb. 4 which called for the people of Asia to rally against American imperialism.

The Pueblo wasn't even mentioned in the commentary as an example of U.S. "crimes." Instead there was mention of an American warship that allegedly intruded into Cambodian waters.

China's reaction to the Pueblo crisis is in sharp contrast to her response to the Indus-Pakistan war of 1965 and the Middle East crisis of 1967. In both of these cases the risk to China was minimal and so its propaganda trumpets were sounded very loudly.

On other events nearer home, Peking has shown characteristic caution. A case in point was last year's disturbances in Hong Kong. The Chinese foreign affairs ministry made no comment at all until more than a week after the start of strikes and demonstrations.

For Vietnam Peace-Keeping Force

Trudeau Offers Troops

By DAVE McINTOSH
From Ottawa
Most of Prime Minister Trudeau's foreign policy pronouncements in recent days are restatements of policies of the former administration, of which he was a member.

However, Trudeau appears to have gone farther than either former prime minister

Pearson or former external affairs minister Martin in offering a Canadian contin-gent to any international peace-keeping force in Vietnam.

He told the United Nations
Secretary-General U Thant in Edmonton that Canada would not "shirk her role" in peacekeeping and said an international force would have to be stationed in South Vietnam to prevent an invasion once the U.S. departed.
This statement caught some officials here by surprise because Trudeau said April 7, the day after he was elected Liberal leader, that Canada cannot act as policeman of the whole globe.

Pearson had held that perhaps only Asian countries should form any international peacekeeping force which might be established in Vietnam. And he specified that Canada would participate only under UN auspices.

Both he and Martin played down the possibility of a Canadian contribution after this country's 14 years of experience with the powerful International Control Commission in Vietnam.

Tacit Backing for Hanoi Alleged

Thant Angers U.S.
In Edmonton Speech

By LOUIS B. FLEMING
From United Nations

The United States has declined to make no formal protest to United Nations secretary general U Thant regarding his Monday night speech again criticizing U.S. policy in Vietnam.

But American officials privately are extremely upset by the speech, which is seen as a deliberate effort to influence the Paris peace talks in favor of the position of North Vietnam and which, according to some officials, came close to being an intrusion into U.S. domestic affairs.

The Secretary General himself is understood to have deliberately chosen the day of the opening of the peace talks in Paris as the occasion for his speech, at the University of Alberta, in Edmonton.

He hoped that he could encourage major American concessions that would lead to an end to all bombing of North Vietnam and thus clear the way for talks on other aspects of a permanent peace.

He is understood to have realized the delicacy of the matter and the risks involved.
But he is also depicted as feeling that his speech was not as one-sided as most Americans believe.

American officials said that no public or private protest will be made, but it appears certain that U.S. ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg will find an early occasion to try to question Thant regarding the speech.

Americans took exception to a number of elements of the speech.

The speech, for example, called on the United States to halt all bombing of North Vietnam without referring to the limitations imposed by President Johnson on March 31 and without referring to any requirement of redrep-rocity from North Vietnam.

Thant's proposal was timed to the very day that North Vietnam was making the same demand in the Paris talks.

The Secretary General referred to the American bombing of the North "as of questionable morality and doubtful legality," but made no reference to the morality or legality of the strategy of North Vietnam in South Vietnam.

Americans also felt that Thant had come close to intervening in the domestic affairs of the United States when he said that "I regard the prevailing mood of violence in the United States and elsewhere as a consequence of the psychological climate created by the Vietnam war."

Informed sources at the United Nations said that the Secretary General chose his words with great care after extensive thought. They said that it was his hope that the speech would help end the impasse over the termination of American bombing and American counter-demands for a reciprocal reduction of military activity by North Vietnam.

Thant has frequently used speeches and press conferences to try to force changes in policy on the United States in connection with Vietnam, but each time he has caused deep antagonisms in the White House and the State Department.

Washington Mirrors Depression

Past Experience Excludes
Quick Agreement in Paris

By ARCH MacKENZIE
From Washington

Unanimous expectations here of prolonged, frustrating negotiations over Vietnam peace are based on depress-ingly solid evidence.

The U.S. and North Vietnam are dedicated to achieving results the other side may find impossible to yield.

As the Wall Street Journal has put it: "Each is expected to bring home a settlement that will come reasonably close to outright victory — wangling it from an enemy that has not really been licked and seems unwilling to admit that it can be."

Each side also has allies to keep in mind — the U.S. the southern regime which appears unrepentant to the North's the North its southern allies, the Viet Cong and the National Liberation Front.
The cautiousness, suspicion and delay expected to characterize the negotiations in Paris also are products of old scar tissue on both sides.

The U.S. is obsessed by its Korean experience. Negotiations there lasted 18 months, while fighting continued, before a truce was signed.
Charges still are made politically the U.S. sold out to communism and memories remain clear of North Korean acts regarded as calculated psychological insults.

Frequently cited is the fact the Korean negotiators at first sat at a higher level, forcing the U.S. representatives to look up.

The memories of the North go back further, and to circumstances amounting to cynical sellouts at the hands of such tried-and-true friends as China and the Soviet Union.

This time the North itself is at the conference table, ruling out double-crosses by its friends.

The North Vietnamese have grounds for attributing betrayal to the French and the British as well as their Communist allies, and perhaps even to the U.S. in past negotiation efforts.

The Viet Minh led by Ho Chi Minh were attacked by the French in 1946 after overtures had been made toward independent status for the then - French colony.
French Communist boss Maurice Thorez agreed with the attack.

There also was the fact it took Moscow four years to extend recognition to Ho.
In 1954, at the Geneva conference where Vietnam was split at the 17th parallel, Ho Chi Minh was "burned," Americans such as diplomat

George Ball have agreed.

The Soviet Union and China in effect reached an apparent saw-off with Premier Pierre Mendes-France of France that failed to exploit the territorial rights that the North could have pressed on the basis of its military influence and strength.

There was no concerted Communist pressure to hold South Vietnam and the U.S. to the pledge of elections in 1956 — elections which probably would have gone to Ho Chi Minh in the South.

"They will come to peace talks remembering with bitterness what happened at Geneva 14 years ago," forecasts David Halberstam, Pulitzer-winning former reporter in Vietnam for the New York Times.

"We may imagine that somehow we gave in to the Communists there in 1954," Halberstam writes in the New Republic magazine.

"They feel that they were about to take the entire country and were cheated out of it. They are not about to settle for very much less; and I suspect, given their control of the population, they will be willing to keep the war going until they get what in essence is victory."

Monday night in the Place St. Michel, wrote: "Passers-by for regular beatings, or attempts were made to disfigure them with liquid tear gas (I saw this done to a young girl ... and to an old man)."

The editor of Le Monde, Jacques Fauvet, writes that these are only some among many descriptions sent in by readers of "blind and useless brutalities." After reading them, one understands why the "demonstrators" arrested by the police included so many foreigners.

One also understands why an opinion poll published on Thursday found that four out of five Parisians supported the students' demands, chief of which is the release of those arrested and the removal of the police force from the Latin Quarter.

Student riots began after the closure of Nanterre University and in protest at police behavior. The violence developed after months of demonstrations against the teaching system and lack of career opportunities.

Paris Police Brutal

By EDWARD MORTIMER, from Paris

The battle between police and French students at St.
Germain des Pres last Monday was at its height. In the Place St. Sulpice, 150 yards away, things were quiet. A few neutral bystanders were discussing the situation. Nobody was shouting or throwing anything.

Suddenly a group of khaki-uniformed riot police charged from one corner of the square up to a parked car and started beating it as hard as they could with their long truncheons, evidently trying to break the windshield and windows.

The car backed slowly and drove away. Its occupants owed their escape entirely to the strength of the shatterproof glass.

I recount this incident because I saw it. But it is easier to imagine excuses for the police conduct in this case than in any of those described by highly respectable eye-witnesses—doctors, lawyers and teachers—whose letters were printed in Le Monde last week.

One, Dr. Le Guen, a psychiatrist, saw police go into a cafe when there were no demonstrators about and systematically beat up a number of foreign students. The police dragged them 30 yards, hitting them all the way on the face and legs, and then threw them into a police van.

"Among the dozen boys thus embarked," Dr. Le Guen writes, "there was a Negro. He was walking more or less

Federal Fund NDP Plan For Pollution

CRANBROOK (CP) — New Democratic party leader J. C. Douglas called Tuesday for a federal loan and grant fund to help industry and municipalities combat causes of water and air pollution.

He told reporters funds should be administered by a national anti-pollution control agency and provinces should be asked to set up allied agencies through concurrent legislation.

Douglas said amendments to the criminal code, "a big stick as a last resort" and heavy fines could be used but called for a "more reasonable" approach through the fund.

NOT ENOUGH — "It's not enough to pass along saying that a farm can be fined $10,000 a day for polluting a stream if the cost of correcting it is beyond their resources. They might need a loan."

"And how do you fine a city for pouring out raw sewage into rivers? You could help them build sewage plants. Perhaps you could give them a part grant and part loan."

Mr. Douglas on the second day of his three-day tour of southern interior B.C. ridings, said he would give further details later in his June 25 election campaign period.

"We would set up a fund... for loans or grants to private companies, provincial anti-pollution boards and the municipal bodies to help them play their part."

He said concurrent provincial legislation would be needed because a federal pollution agency would become involved in such areas as civil liberties and health which constitutionally are under provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Douglas flew to Castlegar and drove to Trail, where he chatted with officials and members of the United Steelworkers Union and main streeted for half an hour with Randolph Harding, NDP candidate in the Kootenay West constituency.

LABOR VIEWS — After that, at a news conference at Kilmaird, he swung at "restrictive labor legislation" passed by B.C. and other provinces and said trade union members are becoming aroused.

"I gather there are many more political action groups being formed by (union) locals. We'll have to wait and see if labor will be a fighting tiger or a pussycat. They look like tigers to me."

"Many trade unionists who took it for granted they had the right to strike and the right to picket find they don't have these rights at all. Now they find that by law this can be taken away. It has shaken people."

'Understanding' First Need

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's concern with national unity and the constitution is side-tracking attention from the "real bread and butter" issues of the June 25 election, Howard Graffey said Tuesday night.

Speaking to the Progressive Conservative nominating convention in the Missisquoi riding, Graffey said Trudeau is making his appeal to English-speaking Liberals who want an easy solution to national unity, people who want someone who will put Quebec in its place and have a showdown with the Quebec government.

Mr. Trudeau and his friends may find temporary support from the people who want a comfortable solution to the problem," he said, "but his stance critically imperils Confederation because it dangerously underestimates the legitimate aspirations of French Canada."

"This is no time for confrontations and showdowns. Trudeau's inflexible and doctrinaire position must be replaced by understanding and goodwill at the conference table," he said.

Graffey represented the riding as a Progressive Conservative in the last Parliament.

Nationalist Envoy: — Ottawa (CP) — Chinese Nationalist Ambassador Yu-chi Hsueh expressed "distress" Tuesday over statements by Prime Minister Trudeau about Canada initiating bilateral discussions with Communist China that may lead to diplomatic recognition.

At a news conference in Edmonton Monday, the prime minister said he believes such discussions are necessary and added that approaches will be made discreetly.

Ambassador Hsueh, representing the Chiang Kai-shek government, said the people of mainland China soon will be able to express themselves on the type of government they want.

SENTIMENTS KNOWN — Farmers and workers had taken advantage of the unrest caused by a power struggle in Communist China to begin to make their anti-Communist sentiments known.

The ambassador, when asked for comment on Trudeau's statements, said one reason for recognition the prime minister has advanced in the past is that it would contribute to international order and stability.

Britain and France, motivated by this thinking, had granted recognition. But last year the British Embassy in Peking was burned down. A few days ago, he said, responsible French sources reported that student riots in Paris were engineered by Peking to disrupt the Vietnam peace talks.

NO CONTRIBUTION — "These facts show that recognition has not contributed to order and stability. I don't see how recognition by Canada would make things any different."

A number of people advocated recognition on the basis that Canada must not ignore the 700,000,000 people on the mainland. "But the Chinese Communist regime does not represent these people or even exercise effective control over them as

Election Roundup

Somebody Stole Ballot Box

From CP Reports

EDMONTON — A missing ballot box and a gentleman's agreement made Monday night's Progressive Conservative nomination meeting in Edmonton Centre something out of the ordinary. Petroleum engineer Tom Chambers won by six votes over Steve Paproski after a third candidate had been dropped as a result of the first ballot.

The ballot box went missing after the second ballot and members of "another party" were blamed. The two contenders agreed to abide by the decision of the remaining 11 boxes: Chambers 353, Paproski 347 and three spoiled ballots.

TORONTO — Although no firm agreement has been reached on a face to face confrontation of two or more leaders of the main parties, the

Peakles

CTV network has announced that each of the three has been allotted nine minutes June 10 in a half-hour election special telecast.

BURNABY — Mayor Alan Emmott has formally resigned from the New Democratic Party. He has opposed NDP plans to enter civic politics in B.C.

BROOKS, Alberta — Noel Sharp, son of External Affairs Minister Sharp, has been nominated by the Liberals to contest Crowfoot constituency.

VANCOUVER — Lawyer John Peakles, 37, son of the lieutenant governor of B.C., has won the Tory nomination for Vancouver Quadra. He defeated minister Charles Jackson and will be running against Liberal MP Grant Deschman and NDP choice George Trassov.

KITCHENER — Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, speaking at a Liberal nominating meeting that named incumbent K. R. Hyman to contest the Kitchener riding, said living conditions on northern Indian Reserves are an affront to Canadian dignity. NEW WESTMINSTER — NDP candidate for New Westminster Olive Lytle has called for a major reform of the election system. He would have elections every four years, lower the voting age to 18 and limit campaign expenditures.

KENTVILLE, N.S. — Former trade minister Robert Winters told nominators of Annapolis Valley Grit candidate Al Williamson that Prime Minister Trudeau "had spoken well when he put in context the relationship of Quebec with the rest of Canada."

VANCOUVER — Former Manitoba premier Duff Roblin struck out at "image politics" and said that political leaders must base their campaigns on policies, not personalities. He was speaking at the meeting that nominated Tory John Peakles.

Minority View

CRANBROOK (CP) — T. C. Douglas, federal New Democratic Party leader, has offered an early but qualified federal forecast: Another minority government.

He forecast substantial gains for the NDP, which held 22 seats in the last House, but gave no figure. He said it will run a full slate of candidates, or close to it, including runners for the first time in the Yukon and North West Territories.

Sharp Sees Issue

Gabon Issue 'Not Minor'

TORONTO (CP) — The question of Canadian foreign policy and foreign relations should be a campaign issue, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Tuesday.

Sharp told the Liberal Businessmen's Club his party feels "one voice should represent Canada outside the country."

"It is not a minor issue and should be put in front of the people as they vote for the party they feel can best handle the situation," he said.

Mr. Sharp was referring to Quebec's attendance at educational conferences in Gabon and Paris.

When it was suggested that Prime Minister Trudeau's statement issued on the opening day of peace talks in Paris that the United States should stop bombing Vietnam was either anti-American or a mistake on the part of the government, Sharp said:

"I don't think Mr. Trudeau was being anti-American and I don't think he goofed."

Early Constitution Meeting Sought by Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau wants the federal-provincial constitution committee of senior advisers to hold its first meeting here by the end of the month or in early June, informants said Tuesday.

They said Trudeau wrote the provinces within a week after taking over from former prime minister Pearson asking them to name their representatives to the committee and to agree to a date for its first session.

FIVE AGREE — Five provinces are said to have agreed to Trudeau's plan. They are Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

The decision to set up the committee of senior advisers was made at the February federal-provincial conference on the constitution.

Other committees also were agreed upon to help in a far-reaching review of the British North America Act, in effect Canada's constitution. It was agreed that the review should include division of powers, possible reform of the Senate and the Supreme Court of Canada, and the status of the two official languages.

The idea behind the meeting of senior advisers is that it will pave the way for a meeting of premiers in Ottawa toward the end of the year.

HIGHER WAGES, MORE AND BETTER REHABILITATION SERVICES for Vancouver Island's handicapped people, were 1967 achievements reported at the Annual Meeting of Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped.

During 1967, Goodwill's income rose by $38,769, wage payments by $101,762 (which included a significant increase in individual wage-rates).

1967 also saw a marked strengthening of Goodwill's professional rehabilitation staff, which now includes a consultant physician, consultant in psychiatry, staff psychologist, training counsellor, social worker and industrial nurse. "This well co-ordinated team," said President-Treasurer George A. Gray, "is setting standards of service to handicapped people that make our local Goodwill operation a shining example to the rest of Canada."

Goodwill is now offering its unique program of full vocational rehabilitation to 141 persons from all over Vancouver Island. Since Goodwill's foundation only eleven years ago, it has grown into the largest and most active locally-based community agency on the Island. This society's success and very high standards of service can be viewed with pride by the many thousands of Vancouver Islanders who donate the used clothing and other articles on which Goodwill's financial health overwhelmingly depends.

Financier, Confidante

Johnson Man Goes Tory

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Faribault, 59-year-old financier and confidante of Quebec Premier Johnson Tuesday announced he will be a Conservative candidate in the June 25 federal election.

His announcement was greeted wildly by 100 party organizers as a potential major thrust to Conservative fortunes in Quebec.

Conservative Leader Stanfield who flew to Montreal from Newfoundland Tuesday morning, told a news conference later that all the rumors about Conservative pressure on Faribault to run June 25 had been true.

This could signal the realization of his own promise to establish a solid Conservative base in Quebec.

Faribault said he will immediately resign his presidencies of two trust companies and soon drop his responsibilities as economic adviser to Premier Johnson's Union Nationale government.

He said he will pick from "three or four" Quebec ridings to seek a nomination. Once he is a candidate he automatically renders vacant his seat in Quebec's legislative council, or upper house.

Speaking in French and English, he charged the federal Liberal government with placing the future of Canada in danger both constitutionally and economically.

A former law professor at the University of Montreal, Faribault has been a declared Conservative Federally for years.

He said he turned down earlier Conservative entreaties for several reasons. In earlier years Canada's constitutional problem "was not as pregnant as it is today."

The financial condition of the country and the federal government had also become a major concern.

He was asked whether Stanfield's accession to the party leadership was a factor in his decision. He said Stanfield's presence with him was an indispensable guarantee of my point of view on the constitution.

DIFFERENCES OF VIEW

The party would be large enough to accommodate differences of view between himself and former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker, he said.

Faribault has been identified with a flexible federalism and demands for a special status for Quebec, but he told reporters Tuesday he has never used the words special status himself.

What is offered to or required by Quebec should be offered to the other provinces.

BOTH MODERATES

Faribault said he and the premier are moderates. There were no important differences between himself and Stanfield.

In words echoing Stanfield's own policy statement made last Saturday, Faribault said provincial arrangements abroad can be made independently on "purely internal matters."

On matters in which the "public interest of Canada" may be concerned federal and provincial governments should consult, Faribault said.

When the public interest of Canada was involved beyond any doubt, all international contacts should be handled solely by Ottawa.

Quebec Fight Out in Open the Union Nationale government as "the artificial government" of Quebec.

The premier said Marchand is setting the stage, for the interpretation that a vote for the Liberals of Prime Minister Trudeau means a vote against the aspirations of Quebec.

"This is very bad for Canada," he said.

He, like other Union Nationale partisans, had campaigned for the Progressive Conservatives before but had not planned any speech-making campaigns across the province in this election because of his position as Quebec premier.

He made his threat to campaign in these words:

"If they continue to place the debate where Mr. Marchand placed it, if they continue to place the debate on a racist basis, it is quite possible that at a certain moment we would feel obliged, let's say, to set things straight."

Asked what he meant by the word racist, he refused to elaborate.

At Burnaby, Marchand told the Liberal party meeting Saturday night:

"The Quebec government has more consideration for foreign governments than for the rest of Canada. Johnson's worst enemy speech-making campaign is the Canadian prime minister; his best friend is General de Gaulle."

At his meeting with reporters, Johnson acknowledged that several Union Nationale MLAs would work in the election campaign for the Progressive Conservatives.

He said: "It's quite evident that several MLAs are going to be busy in the federal campaign as has always been the case with the Union Nationale."

Asked if Faribault's decision meant closer co-operation between the Union Nationale and the Progressive Conservatives, he said:

"He is very well known as a friend of the Union Nationale. I would not be very surprised if this would cause some of our organizers to have a little more enthusiasm."

Faribault had been "a very good adviser" but Johnson disclosed that there were some differences of opinion between himself and Faribault on the constitutional question. He did not elaborate on the differences.

Curbs Shock Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Productivity boss Mrs. Barbara Castle launched new action Tuesday to tighten the lid on Britain's chronic inflation problems as thousands sought to evade the clampdown with threats of strikes and pay revolts.

Beleaguered Prime Minister Harold Wilson meanwhile prepared for a crucial confrontation with left-wing critics in his ruling Labor party.

However, his shaky standing was strengthened Tuesday by better-than-expected trade figures and consequent strengthening of the pound.

KING ECHOES

Echoes of the "Great King Affair" continued reverberating as 14 Labor members of parliament walked out of a meeting at which International Publishing Corporation chairman Cecil King was present.

The government bill to curb pay, prices, rents and dividends was published by Mrs. Castle, minister for productivity and employment, in the face of vigorous opposition from some business circles, left-wing Laborites, trade unions and an apparent majority of workers.

The sweeping legislation scheduled to expire Aug. 11, 1969, aimed primarily to:

- Lengthen the maximum delaying power on price and pay increases to 12 months in co-operation with the national prices and incomes board.
- Require reductions in existing prices where this is recommended by the board.
- Moderate and phased housing rent increases.
- Seek notification of dividend increases and prevent excessive distributions.

The bill was seen as an extension of the prices and incomes act of 1966 and 1967 which clamped a 3½-per-cent ceiling on wage increases, circumscribed price rises and provided penalties for violation.

Although sources anticipated the government would have little trouble in getting the bill through parliament, the first task was to persuade critics to accept the principle.

Trade Deficit

Optimism Greets Bad News

LONDON (CP) — Britain's vital foreign trade showed another deficit in April, reflecting a general trend since devaluation of the pound last November. But officials said Tuesday they still expect a chance for the better in the second half of 1968.

Through a complex series of calculations, the board of trade estimated the April deficit at $87,000,000 ($226,200,000) compared with $92,000,000 ($239,200,000) in March and $71,000,000 ($184,600,000) in February.

Exports, adjusted for seasonal variations, totalled $504,000,000 ($1,310,400,000) in April, compared with $506,000,000 ($1,315,600,000) in March. Imports, again adjusted, eased slightly to $651,000,000 ($1,710,800,000).

These various adjustments account for the fact that the estimated deficit is smaller than a straight mathematical calculation would suggest.

MORE EXPORTS

When the government devalued the pound last November, it argued that the cut-price currency would stimulate exports and discourage imports from high-priced countries.

That kind of push still has not taken place but officials argued that it takes time for the currency change to work its way through the economy. Consumer restrictions announced in last month's budget combined with the government's restraint on wages and prices would produce more optimistic trade figures later this year, they said.

Castle

the line after repeating warnings that the fate of the government depended on acceptance of new price and pay curbs.

Bright spots for Wilson were April trade figures which showed a drop in the foreign trade deficit — although one financial writer summed it up as being "ever so slightly less in the red" — and a healthier pound — $2.38 15-16 against official $2.40.

CLARION CALL

Resentment at King's intrusion into politics with a clarion call in his tabloid Daily Mirror last Friday for the removal of Wilson was underlined Tuesday when 14 members walked out of a meeting of the national coal board of which the 67-year-old press magnate is a member.

There were signs, according to parliamentary sources, that King's intervention had, in fact, rallied the party behind Wilson, facing one of his worst weeks in the present parliament.

This was seen as Wilson's major task today at a private meeting of Labor party MPs when the premier would defend the policy and through it, his own position.

GOOD NUMBER

Sources speculated Wilson would get a good number of members of parliament to toe

BURNABY (CP) — Leakt Electric of Canada Ltd. announced Tuesday it has received a $10,000,000 contract from Ontario Hydro to provide a 770-mile microwave communications system to protect a power transmission network.

The system will include a chain of 14 buildings and 49 microwave radio antenna towers extending between Toronto, Niagara Falls and Windsor, and will safeguard Ontario Hydro's 230,000-volt power transmission networks.

The towers, which range in height from 28 feet to 250 feet, will be completely self-supporting.

Dollar Drain Slackens But U.S. Still in Red

WASHINGTON (AP) — The international drain on the U.S. dollar slowed to about $600,000,000 during the first quarter of this year, a three-fold improvement from the previous three months despite a deteriorating trade picture.

This was reported Tuesday by the commerce department.

The department said a strike at the New York port, the copper strike and increased imports of steel in anticipation of a possible steel strike this year may have reduced the trade surplus by as much as $500,000,000 in the first quarter.

FACE UNACCEPTABLE

Despite the improvement, the deficit in the U.S. balance of payments is still running at an unacceptable pace for the administration which hopes to cut $3,000,000,000 this year from last year's total deficit of $3,570,000,000.

At the first-quarter rate the international payments when it deficit for 1968 as a whole would spend more in other countries come to $2,400,000,000, than foreigners spend in the U.S. runs a deficit in its United States.

Barren Portions of Island Rivers Put to Use As Pacific Salmon Farming Becomes Reality

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Fish farming of Pacific salmon on Vancouver Island is now a reality with a determined bid by the federal fisheries department to increase, by many times, spring and coho salmon populations available to both the commercial and sports fisheries.

Some of the fingerlings raised by fish farming will be used to create new salmon runs in barren portions of several Vancouver Island rivers.

In three new experimental rearing ponds beside the Big Qualicum River, 300,000 spring (chinook) fry are now swimming about and growing rapidly. They will be released to sea in mid-June in a bid to increase the spring salmon fishery produced by the Big Qualicum by two or three times, maybe more.

FOR COHO FRY

Three new experimental tub ponds beside the Big Qualicum River are being used to rear 42,500 coho fry, some of which will be used in a brand new experiment to rear coho in hitherto fish-barren waters on rivers made impassable to spawning salmon by natural barriers such as waterfalls.

It is the first time the Canadian fisheries department has been actively engaged in the fish farming of Pacific salmon and wide use is being made of the findings from experiments made by United States fisheries biologists on the Pacific coast.

The Canadian experimental fish farming is a pilot project that is expected to see establishment of a large fish hatchery in 1970 which would serve to rehabilitate many B.C. rivers and to establish new salmon runs in others. Eventually there will probably be three or four big hatcheries and rearing facilities which would serve all B.C. fish rivers.

EXPERIMENT UNDERWAY

The experiment to make use of barren waters has already started on the Oyster River system where fisheries officials are transplanting coho fry from the Little Oyster (tributary to the Oyster River) to Woodhus Creek, a tributary river five miles upstream which has an impassable waterfall at its mouth.

Plan is to transfer up to 100,000 coho fry into Woodhus Creek and if they can't be obtained from the Little Oyster, some will come from the rearing ponds on the Big Qualicum.

Biologists estimate Woodhus Creek has six miles of rearing water which has gone to waste because spawning salmon couldn't get over the falls. They feel that six miles will provide rearing water for enough coho to provide a potential spawning escapement back to the stream of 2,000 to 3,000 coho adults and twice that number to the commercial and sports coho fishery.

ASSESSMENT PLANNED

The coho fry will be reared in the creek for one year and then an assessment will be made of the number of surviving smolts. If the smolt output is satisfactory, efforts may be made to make the falls passable for the adult coho when they return to spawn.

The Oyster is only the experimental start of an anticipated program to use upper areas of many rivers as rearing water to increase coho production. Unlike other salmon varieties which go to sea three months after hatching, the coho fry stay in the rivers for a one-year rearing period and the number of coho that may be produced by any one river depends upon the amount of rearing water available at the lowest river level of the year.

THREE METHODS

Biologists hope to introduce new coho runs into the upper river areas by introducing adults to spawn naturally, or by planting of eggs or fry, or a combination of all three methods.

Once a run appears to be established, steps would be taken to remove the natural river barriers to allow the returning fish upstream, arrangements made for fish ladders, or to truck them to the upper reaches.

Biologists have evaluated several major Vancouver Island streams between Kelsey Bay and Sooke on Vancouver Island and they believe they could use now barren upper reaches to produce about 80,000 coho for the fishery, over and above that now being produced in Vancouver Island streams.

RIVERS CONSIDERED

Under consideration for upstream development, probably within the next 10 years, are the Adam River, Bear River, Upper Puntledge, Englishman, Koksilah, Sooke and Leech Rivers.

More knowledge is needed before any big project of this nature will be undertaken, but the first to be considered for such a scheme would be the Goldstream system, especially when the new Sooke tunnel has been put to use and the several Goldstream lakes held only as standby water for the Greater Victoria water system.

MANY CROWDED OUT

Recent studies, by both Canadian biologists on the Big Qualicum and U.S. biologists on Pacific streams, have indicated that most rivers produce far more coho and spring (chinook) fry than the rivers can accommodate. Countless thousands are crowded out of the streams as they hatch each spring, go to sea and are lost.

The spring (chinook) fry which stay in the river for a 90-day rearing period appear to be the ones that survive.

The three new 70,000 rearing ponds beside the Big Qualicum are designed to rear fry for 90-days . . . the fry that would otherwise be lost at sea.

THREE GROUPS

This year, three groups are being reared in the ponds . . . 170,000 fry hatched from eggs in the Big Qualicum hatchery; a group of 190,000 planted in the gravel as eyed-eggs; and about 8,000 wild river fry taken as migrants heading to sea.

Idea is to compare the quality of each group's production and return to the river, and relative rates of survival of hatchery fish, compared to wild fish.

Two crews of women and students are working seven days a week at the Big Qualicum clipping adipose fins on the fry and tagging them with minute magnetic color-coded tags. When they return to the river as adult fish, observers will look for those with a clipped adipose fin and then will run them under a magnetic detector to check the tags.

In the United States, fisheries officials have been meeting with most success in their coho hatchery produced fish and only a few of the hatcheries have been successful with fall chinook.

The Big Qualicum experiments are concentrating on spring (chinook) salmon because there are more problems to investigate and iron out and because Canadian officials see the chinook hatchery program as most valuable.

United States and Canadian experiments are being coordinated to a great extent, with a full exchange of the information gathered.

Douglas and Victoria continued to pile up entries in the "A" flight finals during Tuesday's qualifying heats at Victoria High School.

Mt. Douglas again led the way winning 15 positions for a total of 30 entries in "A" events.

SECOND IN QUALIFIERS
Claremont, runner up the previous two years, is second to Oak Bay in total qualifiers with 47, one less than the defending champions and four more than Mt. Douglas.

However, the big points are to be made in the relays and after the boys' and girls' 4x100-yard heats it would appear that Oak Bay's toughest opposition will come from Mt. Douglas.

Both schools placed three teams in the "A" events and one in the "B". Victoria, which had its "B" team disqualified during the girls' heats, also has three teams in "A".

Coach Gerry Montgomery of Claremont, with Mt. Douglas in the giant-killer class against larger Oak Bay and Victoria, is worried about his lack of sprinters and that just might be the difference between another season as also ran and champion.

Claremont placed only one team in the "A" sprint relays Tuesday and three in the "B" finals.

TOP INDIVIDUAL AGAIN
Top individual performer for a second straight day was Anne Langdale of Mt. Douglas, who ran the 40-yard dash in 52.5 seconds to better the mark set by Colleen Davis of Oak Bay last year of 52.5.

Miss Langdale also anchored the school's "A" relay team to the top qualifying time of 52.5 seconds, despite bad passes. The record is 51.5.

Troop Reports

Russian Assails Western Press

MOSCOW (AP) — The military commander of the Warsaw pact, Soviet Marshal Ivan I. Yakubovskiy, accused the Western press Tuesday of trying to strain relations among East bloc countries with reports of Soviet troop movements near their borders.

Yakubovskiy calls these reports "minister provocations aimed at subverting the unity of the Warsaw treaty countries."

Reports of Soviet troop movements near the border between Czechoslovakia and Poland last week caused speculation the Kremlin was threatening Czechoslovakia's new liberal Communist regime with military pressure. Subsequent investigation indicated the troop movements were part of previously planned Warsaw Pact manoeuvres.

Yakubovskiy breaks the Soviet silence on the subject in an article in Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, taking note of the 13th anniversary today of the Warsaw pact.

The marshal says joint manoeuvres are being held now and will be held in the future "in the interests of further strengthening our defences under modern conditions."

Canadian Group In Peru

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — A group of Canadian Mennonites started talks Tuesday with Peruvian authorities aimed at establishing a colony in the dense Amazon forest.

The group arrived Monday from Canada, and is composed of two Evangelical pastors and these representatives of the Mennonites — Jacob Klassen, Giesbrecht Peter, Johan Berger, Bernard Dyck and Friesen Cornelius.

A spokesman for the group said they hoped to talk with President Fernando Belaunde Terry and with the ministers of foreign affairs, labor and of agriculture.

He said they want to put 10,000 Mennonites in the jungle.

Williston Opens Mill

Pulp Policy Defended

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP)—Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston defended his policy of allowing new pulp mills to build in the face of the present glut on the world pulp markets at ceremonies Monday marking the start of the Eurocan Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd.'s $100,000,000 forestry project.

Mr. Williston said he is accused of allowing more companies into pulp production while markets are glutted and while many say "I should be saying whoa."

"The philosophy is one I can't understand," said the minister. "B.C. controls the quality of wood of the world. It would be fine if the U.S., Russia, New Zealand, Australia and others stopped building, but they have not."

Mr. Williston said the oversupply of market pulp is not as bad as is made out by "gloom spreaders."

"There has to be a profit, but in the initial instance this will be tough," he said. "But five or 10 years ahead these mills will all be profitable."

The Eurocan project, which will be in full operation by the end of 1970, will have a capacity of 760 tons per day of kraft paper, lineboard and market pulp and 75,000,000 board feet of lumber per year.

The project is on a 770-acre site two miles from the north coast town of Kitimat and is being operated by a partnership of four Finnish firms and industrialist Ben Ginter of Prince George.

Board's Vacancy Filled

The appointment of R. B. Carpenter of Theta Island to the Worker's Compensation Board was announced Tuesday by labor minister Leslie Peterson.

Mr. Carpenter fills a vacancy created by the recent death of E. V. Ablett.

Mr. Carpenter has had 25 years in senior management posts with responsibility for production, engineering, methods improvement, accident prevention, cost accounting and personnel administration.

He is currently works manager for Canadian Industries Ltd. He was a member of the Labor Relations Board in 1960 and 1961, an advisor to the Canadian employers' delegate at the International Labor Organization conference at Geneva. He also was a chairman of the British Columbia Labor Relations Committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Cheque Put in Account As 'Sympathy Gesture'

EDMONTON (CP) — Former provincial treasurer E. W. Hinman testified Tuesday a $5,000 cheque paid into his bank account by Edmonton businessman Jake Superstein was "a voluntary gesture of sympathy."

The cheque, dated July 27, 1962, was entered as an exhibit at a judicial inquiry into allegations that Mr. Hinman used, or attempted to use, his public office for personal gain.

Elected to the legislature in 1952 as Social Credit member for Cardston constituency, he was appointed provincial treasurer in 1955 and resigned the post in 1955 and resigned the post in 1955 and resigned the post in 1955.

Mr. Hinman told the inquiry he received the cheque after Douglas Layton, his brother-in-law, was killed in an automobile accident July 24, 1962.

"Mr. Superstein heard of it and came to me to express his sympathy," Mr. Hinman said. "And he told me that if I needed a little money to keep these affairs going... he would be glad to lend it."

Asked what affairs he meant, Mr. Hinman said he was referring to business enterprises in which he and his brother-in-law shared: ranching operations, a garage at Pincher Creek, Alta., and one at Fort Macleod, Alta.

Under questioning later, Mr. Hinman said none of the companies ever drew on the $5,000.

"I simply used it to settle the personal things that were outstanding," Mr. Hinman said another cheque for $6,000 from Mr. Superstein was payment for shares in B and R Service (Cardston) Ltd., a Cardston service station. The cheque, dated July 3, 1961, was payable to B and R Service and also was entered as an exhibit.

Javelin is part of the new wave at American Motors. It's the 4-passenger running-mate to the new 2-seater AMX. Both were designed by the same group—a young group with bright ideas. Ideas like long hoods and chopped rear decks... sculptured side panels... flow through ventilation without the noisy "no-drafts"... suspensions that keep you glued to the road on a double S-bend... power that gives you the edge when you need it... and styling that's with it.

To go with those goodies, Javelin's got the kind of power you like. At the top, the brand new AMX engine... the 390 V8 that'll turn 0 to 60 in 6.2 seconds; the one Craig Breedlove used in the AMX to set 106 new speed and endurance records. If you don't intend to go dragging on the weekends, settle for the 343 V8. It's no slouch either... or the 290 V8... or the very gutsy 232 Six.

Javelin sports a list of options and accessories that's as long as your arm... so you can play it as hot or as cool as you like. The easy way is to ask for the SST package: mag wheel discs, reclining buckets, woodgrain trim, sports steering wheel and 4-on-the-floor or Shift Command the 3 speed column or console-mounted automatic that lets you muscle through the gears when you want to.

And now to the heart of the matter: the price. Javelin starts at $2972 (for the factory). How does that compare with the other sports cars? About $144 less than our leading competitor!

Now that we've saved you the trouble of visiting all those showrooms and talking to all those salesmen, we'll trouble you to do a little something for us. See an American Motors dealer and really find out about a Javelin... from behind the wheel. Thank you.

Polluted Placards Stay

Health Board Holds Firm

As far as the metropolitan board of health is concerned, the issue of pollution warning placards is closed — and with no apologies to anybody.

Members said Tuesday that no defence was needed for their action in placarding 23 local beach areas with signs reading: "Warning: Water polluted. Unsafe for swimming."

Most heavily polluted area was the Cove, and the chief complainant against the action has been the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterways Society.

A letter was read at Tuesday's board meeting asking that Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer, attend a meeting of the society scheduled for the same evening.

Board members decided they had no intention of sending the doctor, either to explain or defend the board's action.

INTERESTS CONFLICTED

It was also noted that Lloyd Smith, former president of the Gorge society, resigned from that office on April 14.

At the April meeting of the health board, it was decided to write Mr. Smith suggesting that he either resign from office in the society or resign as one of the health board's sanitary inspectors, as there was a conflict of interests.

SEVERE POLLUTION

A letter was read Tuesday from the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce in which the board of health was commended for its action in posting polluted areas.

The letter pointed out that all the recreational and tourist facilities in the district hinged on a cleanup of the serious sewer and pollution problem, and pledged the chamber's support and help.

"We don't have to defend our actions in this matter and I see no reason why we should get into further debate or hassle," said the board chairman, Mayor R. G. Lee, of Central Saanich, on Tuesday.

NO DEFENCE NEEDED

Ald. Nell Borth, of North Saanich, agreed:

"We are a board of health and what we have done is in the interest of health. No defence is needed," she said.

Egg Plant Given Nod

Neighbors Rally for Farmers

A group of neighbors came to the aid of two young Saanich poultry farmers Monday night who sought rezoning of part of their land for use as an egg-grading station.

The two young men, Peter Goddard and Terry Morrison, operate Claremont Poultry Ltd. at 783 Claremont. Their application was tabled last month because the lawyer for a neighbor pointed out that the advertisement for the public hearing was incorrect.

At a public hearing Monday night the same lawyer, who represented Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Terry of 170 Claremont, across the street from the poultry farm, continued his objections to the application.

Among other objections, he said the property of the Terrys could be devalued by as much as $5,000 if proposed buildings were built in connection with the egg-grading application. He had a professional assessor testify to that effect. He suggested that the applicants be required to expand any building projects inwardly to the interior section of their property rather than closer to Claremont.

said he had five acres he wanted to subdivide, but a real estate man told him he'd better wait until he saw what the poultry farm did first.

But about seven other neighbors defended the application.

Some of their statements: "This is farm area and I hope to see it remain farm area. I have no objections."

"I'm for it. If it's screened, I have no objection at all."

"I have seen the plan and, given adequate screening, it would be suitable use."

good, Christian people and I have no objection."

"I am in favor of these two young lads who are trying to make a living there."

Ald. Alan Newberry moved that the application be accepted. Ald. William Campbell seconded the motion.

It is stipulated that the buildings be set back to provide for road-widening needs and that suitable screening be provided.

The motion passed with only Ald. Foster Isherwood opposed.

Woods Men Back

CRANBROOK (CP) — About 60 woodworkers who remained on strike despite a general return to work in the southern Interior forest industry, went back Tuesday.

Work resumed at three Cranbrook mills operated by Crestbrook Forest Industries and at three other mills in Netai run by Crownwest Forest Industries.

SEVEN MONTHS

Members of the International Woodworkers of America — whose 4,500 members in southern Interior B.C. halted operations by 65 companies for more than seven months — agreed to return to work following a meeting Monday night between union and company officials.

Elmer Atwood, secretary of the Cranbrook local of the IWA, said agreement was reached on several local issues, including travelling time and working facilities. Mr. Atwood said a new agreement on travelling time will go into effect May 31 but refused to give details of the agreement or of other issues in the dispute.

COAST PARITY

The Interior workers struck last Oct. 4 for an immediate 50-cent hourly raise in a one-year contract that would have given them $2.75 and parity with workers in the coast area.

They settled last weekend when IWA members voted.

They settled last weekend when IWA members voted 77.3 per cent in favor of accepting a 72-cent hourly wage increase over three years. The settlement was then approved by the companies.

Meanwhile, employers estimate it will take at least until the weekend before production in the woods and sawmills is back to pre-strike levels.

Victoria Plant Winner

B.C. Forest Products' Victoria division won this year's provincial forest industry's accident control award.

Competing against 17 other mills, the Victoria operation topped the plywood manufacturers' division.

Two other Vancouver Island companies also won awards at the industry's recent annual meeting in Vancouver. Decisions were based on the performance in accident control over the last five years.

SHINGLE PLANT

Western Forest Industries shingle plant at Honeycomb Bay was judged to have the best performance among 17 mills of the red cedar shingle and shake divisions.

The B.C. loggers' division award went to Crown Zellerbach Building Materials Ltd., of Browns River, Courtenay Division, competing against 84 logging operations.

Tenth Recipient Dies

By UPI
A French Roman Catholic priest, the world's newest heart transplant patient, ate light food Tuesday and was strong enough to acknowledge some of the get well messages he has received. In Houston, however, doctors reported that city's third transplant patient — John Stuckwisch — died late Tuesday.

The other two recovering heart transplant recipients — one in Houston and one in London — continued their recovery process with no complications.

Rev. Jean-Marie Boulogne, a priest from the southern region of Marseilles who received a new heart three days ago in Paris, was reported making "very satisfying" progress. He is the world's 14th such patient, and France's third.

"He has eaten lightly today and acknowledged some messages of sympathy addressed to him," said the official bulletin from Broussais Hospital. "The condition of the patient continues to evolve in a very satisfying manner... by his dynamism he has given us significant help in the various medical care we are offering him."

In Houston's St. Luke's Hospital, John Stuckwisch, 62, the world's oldest surviving heart transplant patient, died of progressive liver failure, and deepening jaundice.

Stuckwisch had still been fed intravenously a week after he received his new heart from a man beaten to death.

"One member of the transplant team, two resident doctors and two nurses were in constant attendance," a hospital statement said.

Deteriorated

Dr. Denton Cooley said the day after he implanted the heart in Stuckwisch's chest that his patient's liver, kidneys and lungs were in a deteriorating condition and not functioning properly.

Those conditions apparently did not change.

Everett Thomas, the first of Cooley's three Houston patients, and Frederick West, London's transplant recipient, were both in good condition.

Blairberg HOME

The world's fourth surviving heart transplant recipient — out of 14 operations — is Dr. Philip Blairberg of South Africa, who has seemingly recovered completely from the surgery and has gone home.

Guru Leaves Beatles Cold

NEW YORK (UPI) — Beatles John Lennon and Paul McCartney, two mod millionaires, declared Tuesday they were bored with business and their guru leaves them cold nowdays, too.

Furthermore, Lennon told a news conference, news conferences "are not something I choose to do."

No more than a score of teenyboppers were gathered outside the Americana Hotel to avenge their adoration but at least 300 newsmen — most of them young, long-haired writers for teen rock magazines — attended the session inside.

his lapel, yawned politely for photographers.

Lennon smoked languidly in a tan jacket, black vest and pants, white turtleneck jersey, granny glasses, leather Indian medallion and two lapel buttons, one plain white and the other blue and gold. His blond hair hung to his shoulders.

"He's human," said McCartney. "For a while we thought he wasn't."

Asked if they had a new spiritual leader, Lennon said, "Yes, we."

Priests Injured

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Fifteen priests in a group of about 200 were injured Tuesday when 15-foot high temporary bleachers collapsed at the Catholic youth centre here during a picture-taking ceremony.

Bishop George Leech, head of the Harrisburg Roman Catholic diocese, escaped possible injury by a matter of minutes. He was at the centre preparing to enter the gymnasium to join the group when the stand collapsed.

Some of the priests suffered possible fractures, but all were reported in satisfactory condition.

The priests were celebrating the 100th anniversary of the diocese and were gathered in the gymnasium for commemorative photographs.

Ambulances took six priests to Holy Spirit Hospital in nearby Camp Hill. They all suffered possible, leg, shoulder or back injuries.

After passing three security checks, they waited 20 minutes for Lennon and McCartney to make their appearances amid a respectful hush broken only by the click of cameras and the occasional clack of hippie beads.

What are you doing in New York, they were asked.

"This. What are you doing?" Lennon countered.

But they did volunteer the announcement they are establishing a foundation of the arts to provide "scholarships" for young film makers and rock groups.

Fellow Beatles George Harrison and Ringo Starr were in London working on a new record album.

Lennon and McCartney dodged all questions about their much-publicized use of LSD and marijuana but they were outspoken about the group's recent induction with Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, the Indian guru.

"A mistake," Lennon called it.

This, Lennon said, was "so people don't have to get down on their knees in some office — probably yours."

Zoning Puzzle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Intentionally or not, zoning laws often work to exclude Negroes from the suburbs, according to findings of a presidential commission.

Paul Douglas, former Democratic senator from Illinois and chairman of the national commission on urban problems, released a report Monday linking zoning to some of the nation's racial problems.

"Land-use controls often have the unfortunate consequences, if not the intent, of making it difficult for low-income minority families to live in many urban places," Douglas said.

Liz Burton's Floating Kennel Unchained

LONDON (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor's $2,600-a-week floating kennel was kicked out of its mooring besides the Thames River Tuesday.

The Port of London Authority ordered the $500,000 yacht Beatriz away from the Tower of London pier where the actress and husband Richard Burton have been keeping their four dogs.

The authority wants the space for itself and is also fed up with jokes about "going into the kennel business."

"We're pretty broadminded, but enough's enough," said a port official.

The Burtons rented the white yacht so their two Pekingese and two Yorkshire terriers wouldn't have to go into quarantine for six months, required of all animals landing in Britain.

The Burtons stayed at the Dorchester Hotel and visited their pets frequently.

The Beatriz, which is rented, was moved to an anchorage in the river, and the Burtons will now have to take a small boat out to see their dogs.

Cong Shell Saigon, Air Base

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong shelled Saigon, the big air base at Bien Hoa and seven provincial capitals today. South Vietnamese military headquarters said the mortar and rocket bombardments were light.

At least 15 persons were reported killed and 37 wounded, most of them Vietnamese civilians.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said some rounds landed in a main street of Saigon's Chinese Chinatown section killing five Vietnamese civilians and wounding 27.

Ten rounds hit the Bien Hoa base, 15 miles north of Saigon but caused no damage, the spokesman said.

Viet Cong shells struck provincial capitals from the central highlands south to the Mekong Delta below Saigon.

Meanwhile, U.S. officers told how North Vietnamese who overran a U.S. special forces camp in the far north shot down nine U.S. aircraft, including a C-130 transport that carried six American crew members and possibly 150 South Vietnamese to their deaths.

WORLD'S WORST
This would be the world's worst air disaster.

The fact that officers reported about 5,000 troops launched the attack Sunday against the Kham Duc camp southwest of Da Nang showed that the North Vietnamese still operate freely in the area despite U.S. claims that their main supply base was destroyed in the A Shau Valley to the north.

The C-130 was hit Sunday as it took off with South Vietnamese irregulars and their families, crashed into a mountain in Communist-held territory and exploded.

PLANE LOADED
A U.S. source said the plane was believed loaded to its capacity of about 150 passengers and as far as is known there were no survivors.

If the report is confirmed this would be three times the toll of the worst previous crash in Vietnam. The world's worst civilian disaster was the collision of two airliners over New York City Dec. 16, 1960, which killed 134 persons.

The evacuated Kham Duc camp was one of the observation camps strung around South Vietnamese cities and bases to spot Communist movements.

FRIDAY ATTACK
The Communists launched an attack Friday against Ngoc Tavak where civilian irregulars and a few U.S. and Australian advisers were stationed just to the southwest of Kham Duc.

London Papers Silent

LONDON (CP) — London's national daily newspapers were silenced today for the first time in 13 years by a one-day strike of maintenance engineers who have no dispute with the papers.

The engineers walked out Tuesday afternoon in sympathy with—and in advance of—about 2,500,000 members of a group of engineering unions staging a one-day strike today in a wage dispute with the Engineering Employers Federation.

THREE WEEKS
The last time the London papers as a group were tied up was in 1955, when a strike of engineers and electricians shut them down for three weeks.

Maintenance engineers on British papers are responsible for keeping the machinery running. They do not belong to the regular printing trades unions, whose members reported for work as usual Tuesday night. However printing tradesmen would not repair machines in the event of a stoppage.

Nine national morning dailies elected not to take a chance on running without the maintenance staffs. Their circulations total about 18,000,000 and the loss to the publishers will amount to hundreds of thousands of pounds.

COMMUNIST PRINTING
The only daily paper to appear was the Communist Morning Star. One maintenance man stayed on duty but only in take care of any elevator breakdown, and the paper got through its small press run of 55,000 without trouble.

This was the normal circulation and a spokesman said there was no thought given to running off extra copies to take advantage of the demand—particularly with the Star's excellent racing selections—left by the big papers' absence.

That's right! It needs a good car under $3,000. And Cortina is it. Ford Cortina costs $1985. We admit it's not far under $3,000, but then it really can't be. It just offers so much!

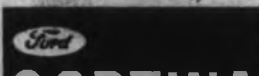

FIRSTLY—It's not a small car. It's big and roomy.

SECONDLY—It has lots of power and economy.

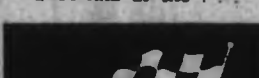

THIRDLY—Its solid unit body construction makes it durable and quiet.

FOURTHLY—It is safety engineered to conform to all North American safety standards.

Saigon Wants Principal Role

PARIS (UPI) — Bul Diem, South Vietnamese ambassador to Washington and observer to the Paris talks on Vietnam, said Tuesday night the Saigon government would have to participate in the talks eventually in "the principle and determining role."

Diem, in a statement released to newsmen, also rejected as "out of the question" suggestions that the United States end its bombing of North Vietnam without a parallel gesture of some sort from Hanoi.

The South Vietnamese ambassador had conferred for nearly an hour Tuesday afternoon with the U.S. delegation chief at the Paris talks with Hanoi, W. Averell Harriman, and the latter's deputy, Cyrus Vance.

Although an unofficial translation of his remarks in French said South Vietnam wanted eventually "a principal role in the talks, the original French clearly said "the" principal role.

New Conflict at Top?

SAIGON (UPI)—A new rift between President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky brewed Tuesday over Thieu's reported plan to change prime ministers in South Vietnam, informed political sources said.

Thieu recently asked Tran Van Huong to return to his old job as premier to replace Nguyen OTTAWA (UPI) — Morale is at an all-time low in Canada's three-year-old Company of Young Canadians, a source in the Ottawa headquarters said Tuesday.

The volunteer organization, created by former prime minister Pearson in June 1966, as an answer to the United States

Peace Corps, has cut back on planned programs due to budget restrictions and is far below its projected worker strength for this year.

Only 225 volunteers are in service across Canada, a far cry from the hoped-for 1,000. Postponed indefinitely are plans for another 1,000 earmarked for service among the underprivileged nations of the world.

"When the government cut-back early this year reduced our budget by 20 per cent to $1,960,000, and forced cutbacks in many programs, morale among a lot of our volunteers went down," the source said.

Many volunteers — paid $35 per month for personal expenses plus a living allowance according to the area in which they work — "sort of gave up and resigned themselves to just getting along as best they could. "Naturally, a lot of plans for better programs have been forgotten. Increases in staff will have to wait. The company, in fact, has come to a relative standstill," the source said.

The CYC has had its share of troubles from the day the first 54 volunteers began a six-week training course in the university town of Antigonish, N.S.

Teachers Going Around B.C. For Upgrading

By BILL STAVDAL

A group of Greater Victoria principals and teachers will study advanced teaching methods in other parts of the province this month in readiness for their introduction here next fall.

They will observe and take part in classes in new open-area schools, and examine the techniques of upgrading and individualized instruction.

Much of the benefit of the educators' experience will come to Blanshard elementary school, which replaces old North Ward school next September.

FOUR TEACHERS

John Robertson, principal of North Ward, was to lead four teachers today to Chartwell elementary school in West Vancouver.

They will spend the rest of the week taking part in teaching classes in Chartwell's open area, a part of the school without fixed walls. The open area can be used by a number of small groups or one big assembly.

Blanshard Elementary will have an open area equivalent to four classrooms. It will be the first school in Greater Victoria to experiment with an open area.

NEXT FALL

The teachers going to West Vancouver with Mr. Robertson are Mrs. Freda Knott of North Ward; Peter Haylett and Mrs. Frieda Dickinson of Strawberry Vale; and Ruth Donaldson of Oaklands. All will teach at Blanshard elementary next fall.

From May 21 to 30 Mr. Robertson will tour northern B.C. school districts accompanied by John Hayes, principal of Frank Hobbs elementary, and Roy Lister, supervisor of intermediate instruction for the school district.

They will visit Vanderhoof, Fraser Lake, Smithers and other points.

Measles

Doses
Given

Members of the metropolitan board of health were told Tuesday that more than 6,100 doses of vaccine were given during the recent measles immunization campaign conducted by the medical staff.

Dr. T. C. Bailey, assistant medical officer, said he believed there should be effective control of the disease in the district this year. The problem, now, he said, was to set up machinery to protect each annual crop of babies as it came along.

The doctor said that about 55 per cent of the susceptible pre-school and elementary school children had been immunized and that percentage, along with the number of children immunized by private physicians, should constitute a control.

Board chairman Mayor R. G. Lee of Central Saanich said there was every evidence that the campaign went over well, and this should be an indication to the provincial government of how necessary it was to provide free vaccine for immunization drives.

The board of health has made many efforts over the years to get either the federal or provincial government to underwrite measles control drives, he said.

Raffle Helps Cancer Fund

The Shirley Women's Institute has donated $246.60 raised by its raffle and card party to the Conquer Cancer Campaign fund Monday.

The donation is $60 more than last year's.

In the library of the future a student dials a taped lesson, dons earphones in his study booth and goes to work.

Or he may dial a videotaped lesson for private viewing.

And then, if he'd rather stay home, he can dial recorded material via his telephone.

ONE SCHOOL

The library of the future has already begun operation at one advanced high school outside Chicago, Greater Victoria school librarians were told Monday night.

Lawrence Leaf, a staff member of the University of British Columbia's curriculum laboratory, addressed the librarians at their annual meeting in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

COPY MADE

Mr. Leaf outlined the random access information-retrieval system in use at Oak Park and River Forest High School. The school is operating with an education research subsidy used to upgrade teaching-learning conditions.

When a student dials a tape, a copy is made from the master in 30 seconds and transmitted to the cage where the student listens, said Mr. Leaf.

Videotaped lessons and home dialing are planned, he said.

MANY FORMS

Mr. Leaf suggested the librarian will soon become a "media specialist" — skilled in directing students to information stored in many forms, not just books.

Kenneth Leighton, librarian at Reynolds secondary school, was re-elected chairman of the association. Robert Evans of Cloverdale school was chosen vice-chairman, and Miss Lillian Easton became secretary-treasurer.

Kiss Denied By Judge

GLASGOW — As James Stewart, 33, stood in the stand near an attractive young policewoman to face charges of breaking panes of glass, the judge asked him if he had anything to say.

"My lord," he responded, "may I have permission to kiss this policewoman?" "Do you often make requests like that?" asked the astonished judge. Gazing lovingly at the now-blushing policewoman, Stewart said: "That's how I feel at the moment."

Permission was denied.

ALBANY — The New York legislature killed a bill drafted by Governor Nelson Rockefeller to license all rifles and shotguns in the state.

JAKARTA — President Suharto plans to delegate some of his sweeping powers by relinquishing direct command of the 300,000-man Indonesian Army. Gen. Maraden Pangrehaban, acting army commander for the last year, will be sworn in Friday as full commander-in-chief.

PRINCE GEORGE — Judge R. W. Kennedy sentenced Leonard Pruden, 43, of Island Cache to six years for the statutory rape of a nine-year-old girl. The crime was committed Nov. 12 at the home of the accused.

MONCTON, N.B. — A lawyer acting for Toronto Globe and Mail says a libel action brought

A jury reduced a noncapital murder charge to manslaughter.

CHICAGO — The 1965 conviction of comedian Dick Gregory on two counts of battery and two of resisting arrest, was upheld unanimously by the Illinois appellate court. Gregory's attorneys had appealed the conviction on grounds their client was denied a fair trial because of a "systematic exclusion of Negroes" from the jury. Gregory was convicted in magistrates' court in April, 1966 and fined $900 and sentenced to jail for five months. The case will be further appealed.

Victoria-Seattle

Hydrofoil Run
Opens Today

The fastest passenger vessel on the West Coast will dock in Victoria's Inner Harbor about 9:30 a.m. today.

The 75-passenger hydrofoil Victoria arrives here on her inaugural run to open commercial hydrofoil service between Seattle and Victoria. The trip is scheduled to take slightly more than two hours.

The return trip leaves Victoria about 5 p.m.

DATE MARKED

Today's trip marks the 62nd wedding anniversary for Capt. and Mrs. E. M. Fosse of Seattle, whose passage was a present by their family. Capt. Fosse is an old-time Washington ferry boat skipper now retired.

There will be between 50 and 60 passengers on today's run.

EX-NAVY MAN

The ship, owned by Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, is commanded by Capt. Jul Nickerson of Seattle, a former U.S. Navy officer.

The Victoria is designed for speeds in excess of 40 knots, but operating between 32 and 38 knots has found to be the ship's economical speed, a company spokesman said Monday from Seattle.

OGDEN POINT

He also warned Victoria's shipwatchers to be near Ogden Point breakwater if they want to see the craft follow.

"Harbour regulations only allow speeds of up to eight knots inside the breakwater," said Ted Kanda. "At 18 knots the Victoria begins to take off, and at 20 she is airborne."

Mr. Kanda also said that when the ship is up on her foils there is very little wake to bother any small boats nearby.

LITTLE DANGER

He said there was little if any danger to the ship if it struck a deadhead in the strait.

He said ample precautions would be taken to avoid striking floating objects when making the trip across the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The Victoria will make one round trip a day with the fare $20. One-way fare is $10.

Rotary Meet

Victorian Dies
In South

A Victoria dentist, Dr. Henry Thompson, 900 Park Boulevard, died in Mexico City Monday night after a heart attack in his hotel suite. He was 67.

He was the B.C. delegate to the Rotary International convention, and was one of 15,000 Rotarians in Mexico City for the annual convention.

Dr. Thompson was born in Eastbourne, England, and came to Victoria from Toronto in 1931. He was a graduate of the University of Toronto and of Guy's Hospital, London, England.

PLAYED VIOLIN

Dr. Thompson was a member of Rotary Club of Victoria and played the violin in the Rotary Orchestra.

He was a member of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association. He also belonged to the Royal Thames Yacht Club of London and the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, and was a veteran of the Royal Flying Corps.

Dr. Thompson is survived by his wife Mildred, three daughters and seven grandchildren.

Fair Count

Tops
12,000

More than 12,000 Victorians laughed, screamed and ate their way around the Jaycee fairgrounds at the Memorial Arena Tuesday.

Fair officials early today had not reached an official attendance count, but said the figures would surpass Monday's.

Organist Earl Grant packed every seat in the arena for his 4:15 and 10 p.m. shows.

Down for Cleanup

After 72 years of assaults from all kinds of weather, copper cupolas atop multiple domes of Legislative Buildings are being brought down and refurbished by provincial public works department. Several dozen of 200-pound cupolas are being checked for first time since buildings were finished in 1896, and job is about half-finished. — (Jim Ryan)

Revision Task Ahead

Boundary Switch Trims
Victoria Voting Roster

A preliminary calculation Tuesday showed there are 53,197 eligible voters in Victoria riding for the June 25 general election — slightly fewer than there were in 1965.

David Wilson, returning officer, said the decline from 54,215 was the result of boundary changes, among which was the loss of the municipality of Esquimalt to the adjoining Esquimalt-Saanich riding.

Mrs. E. T. Lea, returning officer for Esquimalt-Saanich, said she expected to have a preliminary count today. There were 48,209 eligible voters in that riding in 1965.

WEEK OF NAMES

The calculations are made from the lists which have been returned by enumerators who spent last week collecting names. The lists are on their way to the printer.

The list of eligible voters in each polling division will be mailed to every person whose name appears in it.

They are posted on telephone poles in each polling division, where a voter who may not have received one in the mail can check to see if he has been included.

Anyone who had been left off the list in an urban polling division — and these are all the polls except the 26 rural divisions in Central Saanich, North Saanich and the Langford district — may telephone his returning officer.

Heart-to-Heart Talk
Mapped by Experts

Dr. Philip Ashmore, understood to be a member of a Vancouver surgical team preparing for heart transplants, will talk to Victoria doctors Friday about advances in cardiac surgery.

The session will be one of a number on the advances of medicine, scheduled to take place during a continuing medical-education short course for doctors, sponsored by the Victoria Medical Society.

Dr. Ashmore, a clinical assistant professor in the University of British Columbia's surgery department, will be here with Dr. James Burnell of the University of Washington and Dr. Cecil Couves of the University of Alberta.

Bishop Criticized, Defended

School Closure
Splits Catholics

Greater Victoria's Roman Catholic community is taking sides in a dispute over the planned closure of 104-year-old St. Louis College.

Centre of the controversy is Bishop Remi De Roo, who is being attacked and defended for his role in the school's closure. He is to address a public meeting at the college Thursday evening, when the issue will be aired by both sides.

In question is whether the closure of the school was justified on financial grounds.

Brother Kevin Molloy, principal of St. Louis College, declared Tuesday night he is satisfied there was no other course. Others said the same thing.

But a group of Catholics have wired Pope Paul and the apostolic delegate in Ottawa asking for an investigation of the bishop's actions.

There have been accusations that the bishop and a majority of the priesthood are seeking to close all the Catholic schools.

"I think we've been scuttled by the bishop and the senate," said Harold Carlson, 3513 Henderson, a non-Catholic who has three children in Catholic schools in the city.

The other opinion was voiced by Catholic parent Karl Riedemann, 2065 Avondale Road, a defender of the bishop.

MORAL SUPPORT

"To blame the bishop and senate of priests appears illogical, especially since the bishop had given his moral support to the (college renovation) project in several letters circulated among the parishes," he said.

Last year Catholics began planning a new building to replace the aging college building at 1002 Pandora. The project was later modified to a renovation and expansion costing an estimated $660,000.

Last week it was announced by Gerald Weicker, chairman of the Catholic regional public school board, that the money could not be raised from the Catholic community. He said St. Louis would close in June.

DRIVE SABOTAGED

Critics of the decision are saying privately that the fund drive was sabotaged by lack of support from the bishop and numerous priests.

Unanswered is the question of why the priesthood would wish to end a centuries-old tradition of Catholic education.

Alan Ritz, 4201 Tyndall Avenue, head of B.C.'s Catholic Knights of Columbus, declared in a prepared statement Tuesday night:

"It is neither fair nor just to place the complete responsibility for the closure on the shoulders of the Bishop of Victoria or his advisors."

FINANCIAL WOES

Spiralling costs and failure of the B.C. government to grant support to independent schools have forced the closure, he said. "The closure of St. Louis College is a responsibility all must accept," said Mr. Ritz.

Brother Molloy said that rising costs and decreasing enrolment at St. Louis College were behind the closure.

Bishop De Roo was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

A spokesman for St. Ann's Academy indicated the private girls' school is in healthy condition, contrary to one rumor.

Retarded Needs Urgent

Children Locked Up

By A. H. MURPHY

Mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed children are being locked in rooms in the juvenile detention home because there is no place else to put them, members of the metropolitan board of health were told Tuesday.

For that reason the board decided to make an urgent plea to provincial health minister Ralph Loffmark to do something and do it fast. (See also Page 13)

Victoria's Ald. Lily Wilson said the detention home committee had been trying to get action out of the government for years. It made a request to former health minister Eric Martin, and was told that the need was recognized and that something would be done. Two years later, the same answer was received from the then minister, Wesley Black.

"Now it's Mr. Loffmark, and I can't say that I hold out much hope here, either," said Ald.

Wilson. "Meanwhile, we go on locking these emotionally upset kids, in what is, after all, a juvenile jail. It sure doesn't make much sense to me."

'NO PLACE FOR UPSET'

The alderman said that she had been "exasperated beyond measure" over the years. The detention home was no place for an upset child in the first place, let alone having to lock him up. But this, she added, was where they were held pending examination or other disposition.

In a report to the board, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer, said there had been some minor improvements in services available to area children, but little to alleviate the problem in the juvenile detention home. Of the 411 children admitted in 1967 for various offences, 27 were remanded there for psychiatric examination.

END OF YEAR

Dr. Whitbread pointed out that the Eric Martin Institute would be completed by the end of the year and would have 20 to 25 beds for short-term treatment of mentally ill children.

In addition, Glendale Hospital was under construction, the report added. Located near Colquitz Jail on Wilkinson Road, it would have 300 beds for the severely mentally ill who would require lengthy and extensive care.

Ald. Wilson indicated that she would believe it when she saw it, and not before.

FILLED IMMEDIATELY

To begin with, she said, the 20 to 25 beds in the Eric Martin Institute could be filled at once. And so far as the Glendale Hospital was concerned:

"It seems to me we turned the first sod for that a long, long time ago, and there is still nothing there but a hole in the ground."

Dr. Whitbread said there was only one effective method: unrelenting pressure from all quarters. He was instructed to write a strong letter incorporating the feelings of the meeting.

Police Seek Man

Police seized a pound of marijuana at 12:25 p.m. Tuesday when a car was searched on Caledonia by city detective John Markin and RCMP Constable Daniel Crealley.

Police have issued a bulletin seeking the location of one man as a result of the find. The investigation is continuing.

Freak-Out Counselling for Parents

Straight Dope Costs $2

By BILL STAVDAL

A drug that kills ... teenagers who use it and don't care ... parents who can't talk to their children: those are the reasons for Victoria's newest enterprise — Freak-Out Counsellors.

Three young men intimately acquainted with the youth-hippie-drug scene launched the business this week in anticipation of a worsening generation gap this summer.

Their market is desperate parents. The commodity they offer is inside information on what's happening among the kids the older people can't reach.

"Don't come here after your kid has split (run away)," says Daniel O'Brien, 27, spokesman for the group. "Come now."

Raised in Victoria, Daniel graduates this month from the University of Victoria with English and Latin majors.

His associates are Michael

O'Neill, 21, a 10-year Victoria resident who also graduates from UVic next week, and Laird Haggart, 41, a former resident of the hippie districts of Yorkville in Toronto and Greenwich Village in New York.

A phone call to Freak-Out Counsellors — 385-0558 — and a $2 fee will introduce parents to an hour of straight talk on teens and drugs.

It's no joke, the trio declared Tuesday. Victoria's drug scene is getting worse because young people have been progressing from smoking marijuana to dropping (swallowing) LSD, to shooting (injection) methedrine — commonly known as "speed."

And speed kills. Slowly.

"The kids who were on grass (marijuana) last summer are wired on (addicted) to speed this summer," said Daniel. "And speed is a pretty ugly scene."

The three live in a wildly-decorated old house at 314 Robert Street, off Esquimalt Road. Hippie-looking and hippie oriented, they are something other than garden-variety flower children.

The three weren't inclined to argue with a Tuesday report from Vancouver that between 80,000 and 100,000 hippies would converge on Vancouver this summer.

"It's happening. It's scary," said Daniel. "I would say conservatively that there will be about 3,000 of them in Victoria this summer."

He forecast for Victoria the problems that surfaced in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury hippie district: overcrowding, malnutrition and disease — especially VD.

Teen runaways are increasing, they say. They have had girls of 13 and up seeking shelter at their place since they moved in last September.

Parents come looking for their children.

"Teenagers come here trying to buy dope. So do adults," said Daniel. They admit acquaintance with the drug scene — experience is what they are selling, they say — but insist that their house is clean today.

The police know where they live and don't bother them, they report.

They insist that about half of Greater Victoria's teenagers have tried one or more of the so-called mind-expanding drugs. The kids laugh at anti-drug propaganda fed to them by adults, they maintain.

Daniel said:

"The kids were told that grass would kill them. They tried it and it didn't. They were told that LSD would kill them. They found out it didn't."

"Now they are being told by adults that speed will kill them."

"This time the adults are right."

"Next, heroin will be coming on big."

With speed comes viciousness, they warn. A "speed freak" coming out of a trip is a nasty person to cross.

Daniel:

"The preferred weapon among heads (drug users) these days is a war-surplus bayonet."

The heads have taken to arming themselves against the "grease" — non-drug-taking youths who make a habit of hassling (beating or harassing) hippies.

"What's needed is information and communication," said Daniel.

"That's what Freak-Out Counsellors will offer."

Oh yes. One meaning of "freak out" is panic.

Dan O'Brien: the truth for worried parents

Fashion Show to Aid Clinic

Lovely local belles above will model for Victoria High School fashion-show May 29 at 8 p.m. at the school. Girls are students of Miss F. Fraser's class. Proceeds will go to Mrs. G. R.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Since many people read your column and very little else, I hope you will print my letter. It will help educate the ignorant people in this world who think they are being complimentary when in reality they are saying exactly the wrong thing. I refer to the remarks made to the mother of an adopted child, in the presence of the youngster, if you please.

Example: "My goodness, she looks so much like you, one would never believe she is not your own."

Here's another one: "Her real mother must have had a lovely disposition. She is such a dear, sweet child."

And the worst of all: "Was her mother married?"

I have answered some of these nitwits by saying, "The child is my own. I am her mother and of course I am married." Then they come back with—"Well, you know what I mean."

What can I say to these clods?—A Mother.

Dear Mother: You can say "yes, I know what you mean—but do you know what I mean?" If you look the person straight in the eye, your message will be unmistakable. And don't smile when you say it, lady.

Just Perfect

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 15-year old girl who is awfully mixed up. The first problem is that I am a preacher's daughter and everybody expects me to be perfect.

My parents are very strict. They keep reminding me that I have to live up to my station in life. I hate feeling that I am different from other girls my age but that's the way it is and I have accepted it.

Two weeks ago a very nice boy walked me home from choir practice. Just before we reached our block he kissed me. I felt so guilty I couldn't sleep. A week later it happened again. Although I have prayed for forgiveness I feel I should tell my parents but I can't bring myself to do it.

I'm afraid I would be restricted for life.

This morning I was so nervous I couldn't go to school.

I told my mother I had a stomach ache (which was true) but I'm sure my worries caused it. Can you help?—ASHAMED OF MYSELF.

Dear Ashamed: You need to have a long talk with your school counsellor. I hope she tells you that kissing a boy is not a sin and it is not necessary to report this to your parents. It is normal for a 15-year-old girl to want to be kissed by a boy. So long as the boy keeps his hands where they belong and you keep the situation under control you need not feel guilty.

Crab Gets Special Care

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK—David Webb was born under the sign of Cancer the Crab, the most jewelry-loving sign of the zodiac. Because every human being instinctively finds something fascinating about his own sign, he has designed the Crab with special care in his latest series of zodiac bracelets. Set in an enamel band, it has diamond claws and a body made of a huge lapis stone.

Though cautiously, because caution or even timidity is typical of Cancer, David Webb has come to believe in astrology. He goes so far, at least, as to sense that people born under the same sign have something in common. They are like members of the same club or even distant members of the same family.

Libra and Aquarius women are apt to be the most mad for jewelry. They crave it both for its artistic value and for its relation to the past. Aries women want the most dramatic pieces. The Leo women respond and buy quickly, if they're properly approached. They love gold and glitter. Pisces women love jewelry for the romance of it all.

David Webb had thought for a long time about designing a zodiac collection. He knew the cheap seats already had it and that zodiac charms and pins were a dime a dozen at Coney Island. "But so many elegant things start at the bottom nowadays," he says.

It took him a year and a half to forget the trinkets and to work out his own subtle interpretation of each sign. Carried out in the same enamel and precious stones, the zodiac bracelets are even more lush than the animal series.

Even before it was finished, the Leo bracelet was bought. It's white enamel with the lion's head done in diamonds and rubies. Leo women, according to Xavara Pove, the astrologist appearing monthly in Harper's Bazaar, find lion jewelry especially irresistible.

The Leo bracelet, though, is not the most sensational in the series. Scorpio, with a band of white enamel scales and a cabochon emerald, is the most spectacular and the most expensive. It costs $10,000. Some of the others are $4,500.

Virgo is beautiful and mysterious. It shows a woman's face with diamonds flowing through her hair. Taurus, the Bull, has as much personality as the enamel frogs, worn and loved by so many socialites, including the Duchess of Windsor.

The bracelet band is striped black and white enamel and the bull's head black enamel with ruby eyes and a sprinkle of diamonds. Webb has made for the ladies born under Gemini a pull-apart instead of look-on bracelet with diamond cherub heads at each end. The Libra bracelet is also decorated with a woman's face in chased gold and with pear-shaped diamonds in her hair.

Besides the bracelets, David Webb has put all the ancient symbols of the zodiac on to medals of chased gold. The medallions, studded and outlined in pave diamonds, are made to hang from the chains everybody is wearing nowadays.

"I don't know whether the old signs are Babylonian, Egyptian, Hebrew, or Greek. I like them, but I don't even know why," says David Webb. Xavara Pove can tell him. All Cancerians are by nature fascinated with the ancient past.

In his all-out enthusiasm for astrology, David Webb has also created a less expensive collection of gold pins. Unjeweled, the pins are sculptured gold. The interpretations suggest the bracelets. Naturally, the pins can be made in other media. Evelyn Roaman, of Roaman's, one of the great jewelry collectors, is already wearing her giant crab done in solid diamonds. Just what inspired David Webb to climb on the astrology bandwagon, along with Hermes (which has produced the zodiac scarfs) and many others?

Astrology itself has foretold its own current success. It's written in the stars, according to Xavara Pove.

This is only the beginning, she says. "Astrology will soon be taken away from the astrologers and given over to science. It belongs in physics."

Xavara, who must have designed her own name astrologically, believes that soon doctors will find something in the vibrations of human cells (I'm no medical expert) that relate all those born under the same sign of the zodiac.

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

This exchange student business is really quite wonderful when you think about it. Just heard about one student who is now in Australia and who will have been right round the world by the time she gets back to Victoria late next August.

Bonnie Macmillan left here last fall flying to Australia via Hawaii, Fiji and New Zealand. On her way back she will take flights on a number of airlines visiting Singapore, Delhi, Tel Aviv, Athens, French Riviera and Norway to name a few.

Next year she will be attending the University of Victoria.

At the present, Bonnie is attending school in Perth Australia staying with Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Williams.

An exciting thing happened quite recently for Bonnie. She was one of 22 girls to be presented to the Governor, Sir Douglas and Lady Macdougall at the Cancer Crusade Ball held in the Government House ballroom in Perth.

Mrs. Williams helped Bonnie choose the material for her ball gown and Mrs. Williams' sister made the gown for her.

Bonnie will have some wonderful stories to tell when she gets back as the first part of her stay-up until Christmas—was spent in the out-back.

Bonnie's parents, Bob and Ruby-Jane Macmillan, also have an exchange student living with them. She is Junko Nakagawa from Himeji City.

Both girls are under the Rotary International Student Exchange program of which group Bob Macmillan is chairman for his Rotary Club. He belongs to the Douglas branch but would like to see all district Rotary clubs combine in this effort.

As Junko is learning to speak Japanese she is hoping to get on as a hostess in the Canadian Pavilion at Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan.

And Junko would like a job at Expo '70 and wants Bonnie to live with her if it works out that way.

As a matter of fact, the Canadian Government has sent out a release seeking about 12 young Canadians, between ages of 17 and 25, who speak Japanese to act as hostesses for the six month fair from March to September, 1970.

Applicants will get return air passage and will be given a living allowance on top of salary. Applications should go to Canadian Government Participation, Expo '70, Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, 440 Coventry Road, Ottawa.

En Route to Australia

Sailing in the P & O liner, Iberia when she left Vancouver recently was Miss Patricia Ridings. En route to Australia she will also be stopping in Hawaii, Suva and Auckland before arriving in Sydney late this month.

Patricia who worked in the Government Company register office before transferring to the law firm of Pearlman and Lindholm expects to be Down Under for about six months.

Patricia has cousins in Brisbane she plans to look up. But first she'll be joining a friend, Caroline Scarrall formerly of Victoria who has been in Australia for about a year. Patricia is going to look the place over before making any big decision of staying longer.

A Night Off

Henry and Helen Bird who have been working long, long hours to get the Deep Cove Marina in shape since they took over last February are going to take a night off tonight. To celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

There will be a family dinner at the Deep Cove Chalet and then a reception at their home beside the marina looking out over the water.

Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank James with their sons, John and Jimmie will be down from Jimsicum for the occasion and their daughter, Sharon, who is still commuting to school in Victoria, will also be there.

The Birds are proud they have new docks and new floats at the Marina as well as a lot of boats.

Helen Bird says she likes their new venture but on some days if you were to ask her she might give you a different answer.

European Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. John Bishop, Glenelg Avenue, are now on the first leg of a European holiday. They left Pat Bay on Sunday headed for England where they spend some time before going on the Continent. France is first on the European agenda then on to Germany.

In Holland they will meet their daughter, Valerie, who has been in Europe since last September. Valerie has been in Germany and Holland where she has been studying languages.

The Bishops, accompanied by their daughter, expect to be back around the latter part of June.

Biggest Ever

The Art Gallery girls are terribly thrilled about the success of the House Tour on Saturday.

It was the biggest and the best ever. That means they made more money — $1,530.

And that means 755 people took the tour.

This is the first time there were no buses so that people were free to start and to finish the tour as they pleased. Whether this had anything to do with it or not but the fact is that this year saw a noticeable increase in men taking the tour.

Women Plan Jubilee Event

The University Women's Club of Victoria who are celebrating their diamond jubilee year will hold the annual dinner meeting on Wednesday, May 15, at 6.30 p.m. in Holyrood House. Dr. Frederick Mayne of the Department of English, University of Victoria, will speak of Wit and Humor.

For The Birds

Mrs. Norman Watson, a bird fancier of Sechart, a coastal village 40 miles north of Vancouver, is concentrating on hummingbirds. She sets out bottles of sugar syrup and attracts hummingbirds by the hundreds.

Sooner or later, that day comes, the day when a woman feels she's changing. It's not a good feeling either. And she could use a good old-fashioned medicine then.

Could be you feel a little edgy, or maybe cross. You might even have what we call hot flashes and feel sad and slightly off-balance.

Whatever you feel, we have something for the day you need a little comforting. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle ingredients that work to give you a better sense of well-being. A sense of well-being you might lose when you start changing.

With an old-fashioned problem like this, couldn't you use an old-fashioned medicine?

First Baby For Lynda

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced the President's daughter, Lynda, is expecting her first child about the end of October. Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter, press secretary to Mrs. Johnson, said both Lynda and her husband, Capt. Charles Robb, now serving in Vietnam, "are delighted about it."

Something Slipping? Keep Cool

LONDON (UPI)—The London Sunday Observer magazine Sunday published a supplement on "social bloomers and how to get out of them." One question was what a woman should do if she loses her underpants.

The answer: Kick them under the nearest piece of furniture if nobody has noticed, but if concealment is hopeless, look down and say "You can't rely on anything these days" and calmly pick them up."

Garden Notes

Sex Is in Blossoms

By M. V. CHENUT

In Green Fingers, a slim little book of gay verses on gardening by Reginald Arkell, he tells the story of a prim spinster who, disgusted with the sex-saturated atmosphere of modern living, retires to a walled garden in the country to grow fruit.

It isn't very long, though, before she discovers that her few trees, growing in single blessedness, won't bear any fruit, and she is obliged to ponder to their sexual needs by providing suitable mates.

Judging by my mail, ignorance of the sex life of plants is profound, and even folks who are thoroughly familiar with the Kinsey Reports don't seem to have the foggiest understanding of the pollination process.

I have before me, for instance, a letter complaining of a Christmas cactus which refuses to bloom, and the lady wants to know where she can buy a male plant to sit alongside the reluctant cactus and thereby induce it to flower!

It should be obvious that sex plays no part whatever in bringing a plant into bloom. In fact, a plant has no sex life at all until its flowers open, for the only sex organs it possesses are in its blossoms.

Many of my letters speak of male and female plants. This is by no means the general rule, and only in a comparatively few plant families are the male and female blossoms borne on separate male and female plants. Some of these are the asparagus, date palm, bitter-sweet, willow, poplar and some but not all of the hollies.

With these plants, which are known as dioecious, both male and female plants bear blossoms, but only the females bear fruit, berries or seeds, and then only when the female blossoms are fertilized by the pollen from a male plant nearby.

Another class of plant bears separate male and female blossoms, but both on the same plant; the cucumbers, squash and marrow are good examples. Ordinary cucumber vines bear about nine male blossoms to every female flower, hence only about one-tenth of the blossoms make cucumbers.

Most nut trees fall in this class — the catkins are the male blossoms. In corn, the male blossom is the plume away up on top, while the female is the ear of corn itself, with its sticky silk threads to catch the wind-borne male pollen.

The difference between male and female blossoms can be seen most clearly in the tuberous begonia, each big male flower has a drab little wife beside him, with a three-cornered ovary tucked away behind her petals.

By far the most common class of plant, though, bears bisexual flowers, with both male and female organs in the one blossom. Theoretically, such a plant should be able to set fruit or seeds with its own pollen, without the help of nearby plants, and in fact many of our common garden flowers and vegetables can do this. A tomato plant grown in isolation will set fruit, needing only a gentle tap to move the pollen from male to female organs within the blossom.

Quite a few of these plants, though — notably the fruit trees — cannot set fruit with their own pollen. This is probably nature's provision against too much inbreeding, and this is why it is always best to plant two or three different varieties of each fruit — two or more different KINDS of apples, two or more different KINDS of plums, and so on.

Please note, though, that when you buy and plant a mate for your fruitless fruit tree, they are NOT separate male and female trees. Both trees bear blossoms which contain both male and female organs, and both trees will bear fruit, each one cross-pollinated by the other.

It is necessary, though, that both trees open their blossoms at the same time, or at least that the blossoming periods overlap, so the pollinating insects can get at and carry the pollen from one tree's blossoms to the other's.

JACK SMITH Finds an Oasis of Sound

Women Don't Sing Anymore

Today's electronic sound has robbed man of one of his natural blessings — the sound of a woman singing.

It has almost robbed him of the sound of a woman talking, though some may not think this so great a loss.

The radio, the TV and the phonograph make most of the noise in our lives. Even when we talk to each other, it is more often over the telephone than face to face.

A generation or two ago housewives used to sing at their work. The songs were not always happy. My mother favored melancholy songs. She sang When You and I Were Young, Maggie, for example; and The Letter Edged in Black.

Her voice was fairly true and with reserves of power that were beyond belief. If she had a mind, she could crack a street light a block away. She used this gift, however, only to call me home from play. Her voice was a silver chord.

My wife used to sing, before we could afford hi-fi and TV. She had a low, supple voice, as I remember. It was something like Marlene Dietrich's, except that she hadn't lived as much as Marlene, and didn't have the nuances.

She didn't sound sad, though; just sorry. Maybe women still sing when they're home alone. I don't know. It's more likely they listen to the radio or watch TV.

The human voice, unadorned by electronics, is obsolete. It comes to us only by way of the plugged-in sound box, amplifier, woofer, tweeter and horn. A whole generation of young "vocalists" have become stars to millions who have never truly heard them sing.

No contemporary Omar could write —

"—and thou, beside me singing in the wilderness..." Unless it was an ode to his transistor radio.

I had not realized how rare the human sound had become until I went to the Renaissance pleasure faire last weekend in a dell full of oak trees.

As the program said, it was the purpose of the faire to recreate, "amid all that surrounds us as 20th century necessity... those sights and sounds... the spirit of those ancient, merry holidays..."

I wandered among the motley crowd. Most were attired in costumes of the Renaissance or medieval times. There was some magic in all this mummery. I felt the spirit. It could not possibly be 1968. Something inescapable in our own century was missing.

But what?

Suddenly it struck me.

There was no electronic sound. No radios. No public address loud speaker with its big brother bark. No squeak, no squawk, no siren blaat. Just light melody.

Then I strolled into the aura of a group of six musicians sitting on a rude wooden stage under an oak bough. They were playing an Elizabethan round. Their instruments were the lute, the recorder, the flute, the viola da gamba. Nothing was plugged in.

They sang. Their voices were as sweet and clear as pure poured water on a spring day. The sounds rose and fell and chased each other like butterflies, and intertwined and came apart and met again in the exquisite harmonies of that ancient air.

The sound floated out only as far as its own life force would carry it, then sweetly died.

Man, it turned me on.

Yul Gets Comeuppance

LONDON, (NANA) — Yul Brynner is famous for his fights with unauthorized photographers. He can smell them out a mile away. So it is poetic justice that when Katharine Hepburn found Yul taking unauthorized snapshots of her on the set of their Madwoman of Chalklot, she ordered him off. Ah well, we all finally get what's coming to us — which worries me!

Ursula Andress came down with a touch of malaria in Senegal, West Africa, where she is making The Southern Star, and Jean-Paul Belmondo flew to her bedside from Paris. Some snoopers believe they are married... Just a thought: Warren Beatty owns the film rights to Hair and the question is will he repeat the first act finale in the film? As you may know, the cast facing the audience is completely naked.

When Topol, the Israeli star, celebrated passover in the Salzburg mountains of Austria while working in Before Winter Comes, he asked the chef at the hotel if he could bake special matzo with the Star of David in the centre. "Sure I can," the cook replied, "if used to make pies with the swastika in the centre for Hitler," jokes over.

Burt Lancaster's boon companion during the filming of Castle Keep in Yugoslavia, is a Mrs. Boone and he is expected to marry her when he gets his divorce from Norma. The fire that might have killed Burt—the castle on the set burned down virtually at his feet—did not cause much of a delay in the filming because it happened just before a four-day holiday.

It is now official: Sheila Graham will attend the Petulia showing at the Cannes film festival on May 23. And of course the boy on her arm will be Warren Beatty... Kirk Douglas signed to star in Charlemagne, playing the medieval conqueror who made most of Europe his empire.

David Warner of Morgan fame will do a complete switch of character when he plays Don Quixote in Carlo Festi's film version of The Man of La Mancha, with Topol as Sancho Panza. And with Ponté at the helm, you can bet that Sophia Loren will be Dulcinea, the dual role might have been written for her.

David Warner, has joined the star cast of the The Seagull, which Sidney Lumet will be filming in Stockholm with Vanessa Redgrave, James Mason and Simone Signoret. Vanessa was David's love in Morgan, which made them both international stars.

I hope it isn't true but Lily Palmer, who always enhances whatever play or film she makes, is talking of retiring to her farm near Zurich. She says things like "Not wanting to outstay her welcome," which is ridiculous. In my book, there is no age limit for someone of Miss Palmer's ability and physical attraction. Which is more than I can say about some other better-paid darlings of the silver screen, who are taking too long to fade into a well deserved rest.

In Rome they are expecting Marlon Brando back in September to star in Quemada, which in English means "burned," by Gille Pontecorvo who did The Battle of Algiers, so you know it's good. Marlon signed for it, before he postponed if not abandoned his film career. So maybe this is off, too.

In case you are wondering whatever happened to Rossellini, he has two series on Italian television, Deeds of the Saints, and The Fight for Survival. He will also direct a feature film, Calligula.

Man Paranoid Freak SYDNEY HARRIS

In his recent book, The Ghost in the Machine, Arthur Koestler makes the radical suggestion that only a pill can cure mankind of its deepest ill—hatred and aggression. He thinks science must find a pill to change the workings of the human brain so that we do not commit race suicide in the next war.

According to Koestler, man is a freak in the evolutionary process. Due to some unknown mutation in the past, he thinks our species is operating with two different brains joined together: an old animal cortex and a "new" human brain. These do not function well together, and their dysfunction results in our clash between mind and emotions.

Certainly what he says is true enough. We seem to be a schizophrenic race of creatures. We venerate love, and practice hate. We honor thought, and live by emotions. We are a bundle of conflicting and contradictory ideas, attitudes, impulses, appetites, and reactions.

Most of all, we are paranoid. We project our own faults and inadequacies upon others—not merely upon other individuals, but upon other groups. We seem to have a deeply rooted need for some Enemy—by whatever name we call it—to blame for all our woes.

ly accurate. The major powers are now embarked on an arms race that can end only in mutual disaster; both sides have acknowledged this, and yet everyone seems powerless to halt or reverse the steady slide toward the edge of the cosmic precipice.

If we possessed only an animal brain, we would be creatures of instinct, and do instinctively what is best for us and our species. If we possessed only human brain, we would be able to reason our way out of this impasse, as coolly as we have been able to order all our technical and material progress.

But the new intellect in the neocortex has crippled the ancient instinctual impulses, while the human brain has been impeded by its ancestral vestiges—and these two elements clash rather than combine.

This malfunction has made us more ferocious than any other species of animal—using our intellects for bestial purposes.

This is an intriguing theory. Rather than being the lord of creation, man is seen as its dupe—as a curious and ominous "sport" in the evolutionary process, who must now use the intellectual part of his brain to rectify the error of the evolutionary process and make his own mutation into a creature which can survive its own biological insufficiencies. But if we invent such a pill, what will make us take it?

Bank Beautified, Not Waters

Saanich municipal workmen forge ahead with Gorge beautification now in second stage of development between Colquitz and Austin. Council emphasized it was strictly a program of beautifying Gorge bank, not cleaning up waters. Work is being done with provincial money and municipal workmen. Second stage of three phase beautification program will cost nearly $70,000. First stage from Admirals Road to Colquitz, completed earlier this year, cost $92,675.—(Kingsman)

'Those We Can't Handle Will Be Shipped Home'

By United Press International

The leader of the southern caravan of the Poor People's March on Washington said Tuesday marchers inclined toward violence would be culled from the ranks and sent back home.

"We've sent quite a few home already and anybody we can't control, we'll send home right away," said Albert Turner, Alabama field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, sponsors of the march.

He said a full busload might be sent back "to get out the element of violence." The march, aimed at dramatizing the plight of the poor, has been marred by two incidents of violence. One occurred last week in Boston when a white man protesting the march was stabbed, and a flareup happened Monday in Detroit.

Mounted police broke up the Detroit incident with nightsticks after a scuffle started outside a hall where marchers were eating.

Leaders of the march have vowed to camp in Washington until Congress tunnels additional billions of dollars into the war on poverty.

Dirty Washrooms May Close Schools

VANCOUVER (CP) — City high schools will have to be closed if the dispute between the International Union of Operating Engineers and the school board is not settled shortly, a Vancouver school board spokesman said Tuesday.

The litter problem is acute and washrooms are not being cleaned in the city's 22 high schools, where pickets have been posted since Friday. Ernest Green, secretary of the union, appealed to students Monday to return to their schools after many refused to cross the picket lines. Absenteeism is averaging about 100 students in each of 10 schools. Other schools reported normal attendance. Negotiations were scheduled to resume late Tuesday between the school board and striking janitors and engineers. Douglas Eastwood, union president, said talks arranged Monday by the provincial government conciliation officers broke down because the school board negotiators had no authority to make decisions without referring them to the board. Over 200 workers are involved in the dispute over job security, wages and job definition.

Mayor Threatens Community Group

NEW YORK (UPI) — About 50 demonstrators, most of them Negroes, took possession of an experimental public school in Brooklyn Tuesday. Mayor John Lindsay said he would use police if necessary to see that 19 teachers, who were fired because of a dispute, return to work.

"Tenure for teachers and administrators in our schools is protected by law," Lindsay said. "As mayor of this city it is my duty to see these laws are respected."

"Because the community group... has taken an action that is beyond the law, I will, of course, support the board of education and the superintendent of schools, if they ask for police assistance," Lindsay said.

VOW MADE The demonstrators who took over the experimental school vowed to run it until they win complete parent-community control of its administration.

The seizure climaxed years of racial discord in the nation's largest school system which has tried, with limited success, to run three ghetto school districts with the participation of parent-community councils this year.

The experiment, financed by the Ford Foundation, has met with opposition from the United Federation of Teachers and with Black Power groups who want outright control of predominantly-Negro schools.

GHETTO SCHOOLS Nineteen teachers were fired in the eight-school district by a parent-community council for allegedly sabotaging decentralization of ghetto schools.

"We are taking power now that we should have taken long ago because the power belongs to the people."

A spokesman said the demonstrators would not stay in the building at night but had resolved that "the community will run the school" from now on.

Education Men Borrowed

TORONTO (CP) — The loaning of two senior officials of the Quebec and Ontario education departments to the Council of Ministers of Education by Council Chairman William Davis, Ontario education minister.

Mr. Davis said Dr. E. J. Quirk, Ontario's assistant curriculum superintendent, will serve as acting secretary of the council until Sept. 30, by which time the council will be in a financial position to hire its own staff.

The council chairman said in a statement Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal has appointed Denis DeBelleville as general co-ordinator for activities of the council in relation to Quebec.

A spokesman for Mr. Davis' office said Mr. DeBelleville's appointment will also end Sept. 30 when the council will appoint a fully bilingual staff for a national office on education to be located in Toronto.

The spokesman said Mr. DeBelleville will continue to be based at Quebec City although he will be a council official.

Experiments Sheriff Inhales Mace Gas

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cook County Sheriff Joseph Woods allowed himself to be "maced" Tuesday in the interest of scientific research and to show that use of the chemical deterrent is more humane than a .38 calibre pistol.

Woods was one of several volunteers from his office who took part in tests conducted by Dr. Edward Walters, the Cook County jail and Dr. Mort Schmittman of the University of Illinois' anaesthesiology department.

Woods and the others received a one-shot spray from an aerosol can at a distance of about 15 inches.

A few seconds after the spray hit his chest, Woods said he had a "burning sensation" in his chest and in his eyes, which began to water profusely.

"At first it felt cool. Then I got a burning sensation in my chest and then in my eyes. I felt restricted. It took an effort to keep my eyes open," he said.

"By conducting the test under scientific controls, I hope to prove that Mace is a very humane weapon, more humane than the use of a .38 calibre pistol," Woods said.

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says formation of a national bilingual education office will be announced today by Education Minister William Davis.

The newspaper says the new body should help ward off jurisdictional disputes such as the recent one between the federal and Quebec governments over Quebec participation in sessions of an international education conference in Gabon and Paris.

The story says Dr. E. J. Quirk, Ontario's assistant curriculum superintendent, will head the office until September.

Davis is chairman of the Inter-Provincial Council of Education Ministers which last September gave official approval to creation of the national body.

Leave Period Shorter

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver school trustees bowed Monday to changing medical and social attitudes towards pregnancy.

The board slashed the minimum maternity leave for teacher from 17 months to 3%.

A pregnant Vancouver teacher used to have the birth of her child and stay away for a full year after the birth.

Now, she is required to take off only two months prior to and six weeks following, the birth.

The change was recommended by a special committee which looked into teacher and parent attitudes towards the old regulations.

Over 200 workers are involved in the dispute over job security, wages and job definition.

Tense Panama Awaits Ballot Result

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — National guardsmen used tear gas and fired shots into the air Tuesday to disperse hundreds of opposition party supporters restlessly awaiting results of last Sunday's presidential election.

Reliable sources reported official counting of ballots probably would not start before Saturday. Post-election rioting has killed two persons and injured dozens.

Although guardsmen, wearing full battle dress, prevented repeats of Monday's bloodshed, about 600 Panamanians continued to clog Balboa Avenue overlooking the Bay of Panama.

Police said a man who taunted the crowd with obscenities was badly beaten after a rock went through the windshield of his old sedan and struck him on the forehead, causing the car to crash into a building.

GUARDSMEN SAVED HIM The crowd jerked the man from behind the wheel and battered him before guardsmen swept in.

Delay in the tally by the electoral tribunal presumably is aimed at calming the political passions aroused by the still undecided presidential contest between David Samudio, the government candidate, and Arnulfo Arias, of the opposition.

BUSES BURNED In wild disorders Monday an opposition radio station was shot up, a government political headquarters attacked and five buses and four cars overturned and burned.

The national guard is Panama's combined police-army force.

Supporters of both Arias and Samudio continued to claim victory in Sunday's presidential contest on the basis of their own unofficial tallies.

OPPOSITION WINNING? The opposition said its count showed Arias leading Samudio by 42,315 votes with virtually all of the unofficial count completed. However, Samudio supporters put him ahead of Arias by 1,807 votes on the basis of unofficial returns from 1,123 of the country's 1,400 polling places.

The electoral tribunal made no official announcements. The National Elections Board, which had set up its headquarters in an old movie theatre, moved to what it termed "a safer location" in the Chamber of Commerce building.

The boy is charged with stealing one car on Blanshard which was later located on Vista Heights, a second at Quadra and Hillside which he told police he left "somewhere on the highway" and a third from a service station lot on Gorge.

City police said a car bearing 1968 plates was stopped at Cook and Yates and the driver fled. He was located at Fort and Vancouver.

Girl Runs in Vain, Two Die in Lake

A Campbell River girl ran three miles through bush in a vain effort to get help, after a boat overturned near Squamish.

Gary Walker, 21, Campbell River, Miss Hogue's fiancé, was one of those who died.

The other man was Carson Taylor, 31, Wood-fibre, who had a young family.

The accident occurred at Lovett Lake, 12 miles from Squamish, while the three were fishing. Funeral service for Gary will be held in Vancouver Thursday.

Drinking on Sundays

Bennett Laughs Off Sexton Suggestion

VANCOUVER (Staff)—Premier Bennett tried Tuesday to laugh off the suggestion by archbishop Harold Sexton that B.C. laws be changed to permit drinking after noon on Sundays.

The subject came up when the premier, who is here to campaign for next Tuesday's provincial byelection in Vancouver South, was talking to teetotaler Miss Mary Young, 77.

Miss Young, obviously disapproving of the archbishop's stand, said she understood he (Archbishop Sexton) "enjoyed a little drop," meaning an occasional drink.

Mr. Bennett, in a jovial mood, said: "He likes a little gallon ... but he's retiring soon and he has a sense of humor. The papers, of course, picked up what he said."

"I was in the cathedral when the archbishop tried to explain it all away. He said, if we can have a drink on Monday, why not on a Sunday?"

"I said to him: Do you mean there is no difference between the Sabbath and any other day ... and he couldn't answer."

Victoria NDP Candidate:

Canada Aids Richest

By NANCY BROWN

Canada is giving foreign aid to the richest country in the world, scientist Dr. Harvey Richardson told the Victoria riding New Democratic Party nominating convention Tuesday night.

"We go to the trouble to educate our young people, and then they have to help our competitors on world markets in order to find employment," the Victorian said.

"It is a ridiculous situation when our young people must go to America to find employment."

ONE OF DESIGNERS

One of the designers of the world's largest optical telescope which is to be built on Mount Kobo near Penticton, Dr. Richardson was nominated as NDP candidate.

The confirmation of Dr. Richardson's nomination brings to three the number of hopefuls officially in the June federal election campaign in Victoria riding.

Others are Conservative Eric Charman, a real estate agent, and incumbent Liberal David Groos.

INDUSTRIES NEEDED

Dr. Richardson said Victoria needs scientific research industries.

Such development would fit in well with Victoria's status as a developing university city.

Dr. Richardson said Canada's gravest problem is not that of unity, but of avoiding economic and political integration of the Canadian and the U.S. economies.

He advocated a Canadian capital resources fund, controlled by the government and used for investments necessary for the over-all development of the economy.

RANK REQUEST

He said most parliamentarians are either lawyers or businessmen, and that it is about time a scientist joined their ranks.

Dr. Richardson was supported by Grace MacInnis, candidate for re-election in Vancouver-Kingsway riding.

Mrs. MacInnis accused the Liberal government of having sent much-needed and promised drug legislation down the drain when Parliament was dissolved after the Easter recess.

The Liberals had rejected the Carter report that urged fairer taxation.

Mrs. MacInnis predicted an increase in the NDP vote this election, with the party gaining from both Conservatives and Liberals.

Victoria NDP campaign manager Lloyd Brenereton said the failure of Victoria Social Crediters to field a candidate in the federal election would swing votes to the NDP.

"Many people vote Social Credit provincially, and NDP federally," said Mr. Brenereton.

Jubilee and St. Joseph's Accepting Term Plan?

By JOHN MATTERS

Both of Victoria's major hospitals appear to be moving quickly toward preparing individual, long-term plans that will mesh into the Agnew, Peckham view of this area's hospital needs.

There were indications Tuesday that Royal Jubilee Hospital's board of directors would discuss such a proposal at a meeting next week.

The suggestion that Jubilee prepare a long-range master plan was among the first made in the Agnew, Peckham study which was released two weeks ago.

St. Joseph's Hospital has announced that it plans to engage the same firm of consultants to bring its long-range plan up to date.

In the meantime, the hospital advisory committee has something to report to the regional board's meeting on May 22. The committee held a three-hour meeting a week ago.

Dr. Harvey Agnew's new assignment from St. Joseph's—his firm did a master plan for that hospital several years ago—will probably entail the investigation of the feasibility of building a new hospital on the site of St. Ann's Academy.

(The Agnew, Peckham report on regional hospital needs said all of St. Joseph's beds were either obsolete or of questionable modernity, which means the entire hospital should soon be due for replacement.)

Some sources point out most of it would be well-suited to a long-term care centre. If that was the case, what might that do to the Agnew, Peckham proposals for such large units at Colwood and Sidney?

Fred Norris, chairman of St. Joseph's board of management, said:

"Our view is that the new facilities we need could be built on St. Ann's Academy property and that, from these facilities, would be built up a new hospital with the gradual phasing-out of the existing hospital."

Quebec: Fight Is On

Perrault 'Test' Of U.S. Control

CRANBROOK (CP) — New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas voiced a welcome Tuesday for Ray Perrault, who is expected to resign today as B.C. Liberal leader to oppose Douglas for the Burnaby-Seymour seat in the June 25 election.

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Perrault would be a good candidate who would provide Burnaby-Seymour voters with an opportunity to express their feelings about growing American control of the Canadian economy.

"Mr. Perrault is one of the Liberals who was most responsible at the Winnipeg (Liberals) conference for shooting down Walter Gordon's proposals for curtailing the growing American controls of our economy," he added.

MONTREAL (CP) — The pattern for the June 25 election campaign fight in Quebec was set Tuesday by Prime Minister Trudeau, Premier Johnson and Marcel Faribault, the Quebec premier's constitutional and economics adviser — who announced he will be a Progressive candidate.

As Faribault and Conservative leader Stanfield made the announcement here, Trudeau was launching a vigorous attack on the Johnson-Faribault theories of international relationships.

CAMPAIGN '68

See also Page 6

After the announcement was made, Johnson commented on it by threatening in Quebec City to hit the hustings if the federal Liberals continue what he called a racist and anti-Quebec campaign.

Trudeau said Johnson's theories could lead to the "disintegration" of Canada and that those of Faribault could lead to the "disintegration" of major international agencies.

INTERNATIONAL ROLE

Speaking at a luncheon organized by the Chambre de Commerce de Montreal the prime minister said Johnson believes that Quebec has an international role to fulfill and Faribault claims that the province must become full members of the great international organizations like UNESCO.

This meant that Quebec could act like a sovereign state and that each province could ignore the federal government and have an independent foreign policy in those fields within its jurisdiction without consulting the federal government.

CONTRADICTIONS

The first consequence of this theory was that Canada could have several foreign policies, each one contradicting the others.

If Quebec could undertake direct relations with Gabon, Ontario could wish to have the same with Rhodesia, against which country the federal government had taken certain restrictive measures.

British Columbia could decide to establish consular relations with Peking, capital of mainland China which Canada does not recognize.

SEVERAL VOICES

The consequence of Faribault's theory was that Canada has several contradictory foreign policies that means the disintegration of Canada because then one country speaks with several voices.

Johnson's theory was that international organizations like the United Nations and UNESCO would swell beyond measure until they completely disintegrated because the 10 provinces could each send to them one representative in addition to the representative of Canada.

NOT DESIRABLE

The United States thus would want to send 50 representatives, Switzerland, Brazil and the other large federal states would do the same leading to the disintegration of these organizations, "something that is not desirable and certainly is not sought by those who hold this theory."

Johnson's theory would in short, involve the disintegration of international law. France would be able to invite to conferences Mauritius, whose population is French-speaking, but which belongs to Great Britain, or Louisiana or the inhabitants of Belgium known as Walloons, who speak French.

FRENCH TERRITORIES

The Organization of American States could invite to its meetings the island of St. Pierre and Miquelon Guadeloupe and Martinique, all of which are French territories located near the North and South American continents.

"These examples," said Trudeau, "all seem radical except when applied to us."

"In other countries these absurdities are unthinkable, but they are possible here because the constitution is not clear in that area."

ONE ADDRESS

Trudeau said foreign policy could not be fragmented. International policy was a specific activity accorded to the central government.

"When a foreign country wants to talk to Canada there is only one address: Ottawa. There is no need for the street number; Ottawa, Canada, is sufficient."

Johnson cited a speech at Burnaby, during the weekend by Manpower Minister Jean Marchand who described

Freed Miners Joke

Hours Late For Supper

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — A tiny bucket-like hoist completed a four-hour rescue operation shortly before 9 p.m. ADT Tuesday, bringing the last of 49 coalminers safely to the surface of the Drummond Coal Co. mine here.

The men, cold and damp but unhurt, had been trapped by a large fall of stone as they were travelling out of the mine at the end of their shift. They walked about a mile underground to reach an air shaft through which they escaped—three at a time—in the hoisting device.

The rescue ended anxious hours for the residents of this Pictou County town. The miners themselves grinned through coal-blackened faces and joked about being late for supper.

One said "there's nothing to it—we're all ok."

The mine is expected to be out of production for about one week.

Hundreds of townspeople and residents of nearby New Glasgow and Stellarton gathered near a fan house at the top of the air shaft as the men were brought up, about three every 15 minutes.

The fall of stone occurred at considerable distance from where the men were working.

Past Disasters Near

The pit is the last working coal mine in this Pictou County town of 4,000, about 100 road miles northeast of Halifax. It employs about 100, including surface workers.

The Pictou field is about 75 miles east of the Cumberland coalfield, struck by major disasters in 1956 and 1958. Thirty-nine men were killed in No. 4 colliery in Springhill in 1956 and 75 died in No. 2 colliery in 1958. Both were subsequently closed.

The miners had been on their way out of the mine by way of the main slope when the fall occurred. Although they were some distance from the fall, they knew immediately something was wrong because the underground power failed and the electric "man rake" on which they were travelling ground to a halt.

Hundreds of relatives, friends and neighbors, flocked to the mine fearing "another Springhill."

They were reassured, however, when the first miners came to the surface and explained there had been no injuries, and it was only a matter of time before they were all safely out.

"What's all the excitement about?" miner Fred Doucette asked. "There's nothing out of the ordinary happening. It was just a routine fall and all the men knew they had the second way out."

'All Bombing Must Stop'

Restraint Refused

PARIS (AP) — A spokesman for North Vietnam's chief envoy at the Vietnam peace talks said Tuesday "no ransom will be paid to the American aggressor" for an end to all U.S. attacks on the North.

Thus the North Vietnamese diplomat, Xuan Thuy, made known a refusal to yield to U.S. requests that North Vietnam show restraint in return for a complete bombing pause.

"The United States must stop all bombing," his spokesman Nguyen Van Sao, told reporters as the negotiations took a break after the opening session Monday. (See also Page 18.)

Meanwhile, Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, the American negotiator, said he has been "hard at work with a microscope," going over Thuy's opening policy statement of Monday.

"We have got to find some basis on which to move ahead."

The negotiators today go into the second round of their talks in France's International Conference Centre.

The Hanoi spokesman also asserted it was a U.S. "slander" to say North Vietnamese were fighting in South Vietnam.

Asked about this, Harriman replied that the presence of North Vietnamese in South Vietnam has been established — some have been captured — and added: "I don't know why they keep up this fiction."

Comment and action bearing on the Paris talks came from these capitals:

● In Washington, President Johnson acknowledged Harriman's team faces "very hard negotiations."

● In Moscow, the state radio claimed Communist Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung told Thuy he considered "it was erroneous that Hanoi agreed to meet" the Americans. So far, Peking's information organs have blacked out all word of the talks.

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — Rescue workers are continuing efforts to save 23 men trapped in a cave-in at a precious stone mine at Hualien.

Police said that, if the men are brought out alive, they will be taken directly to jail for entering the mine without permission. The mine owner filed a robbery charge against the men.

Burmese Cyclone Kills 837

AKYAB, Burma (Reuters) — The death toll in Burma's worst-known storm disaster rose to 837 Tuesday as government relief parties pushed into five towns along the devastated Bay of Bengal coast.

Casualty and damage reports are still awaited from other regions along a 20-mile stretch of coast struck Friday by a cyclone with winds of more than 120 miles an hour, plus 15-foot tidal waves.

Pickets Block Rally

By IAN STREET

VANCOUVER — Bill 33 became the dominant topic at a Social Credit election rally which was held outdoors here Tuesday night after picketers barred entrance to a nearby high school auditorium.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson took the spotlight away from Premier Bennett and other cabinet ministers as the meeting, attended by 735 shivering Vancouver South residents, wound up in less than an hour. (See also Page 24.)

The government's controversial mediation act was brought up when a heckler called on Mr. Peterson to talk about the strike of custodian engineers which had tied up 22 local high schools.

"If that's why we're here tonight," Mr. Peterson said.

Major Issue

He said Bill 33 was a major issue in the provincial by-election because "this much-maligned piece of legislation" was designed to bring stability to labor-management relations in B.C.

"Only the government in the legislature, and Social Credit candidate George Wainborn in the by-election contest, supported the bill, the minister reminded the audience.

"Those who opposed it — the NDP and the Liberals — must of necessity be in favor of a monopoly of labor or a monopoly of management being able to paralyze the economy of this province," Mr. Peterson said.

It's Simple

"Those who oppose this bill must of necessity say the government has no right to protect the interest of the public or the welfare of the people of this province.

"It's as simple as that."

A heckler in the crowd shouted, "And H. R. MacMillan!"

Mr. Peterson said the government represented no pressure group, but rather all the people, "including labor and management."

"If you want government by big labor, or by a teacher federation that seems to have a lot of money to spend these days, then vote for the opposition."

"But if you want government that represents all the people and will deal fairly with all segments of the economy, I would suggest you vote next Tuesday for George Wainborn."

Demands Being Met

Students Take Over French Universities

PARIS (AP) — Flying the red-and-black flags of rebellion and anarchy, students occupied most of France's 18 universities Tuesday in a seizure that Premier Georges Pompidou called an international plot and a "trial of our civilization."

Shaken by the rebellion and a censure motion, Pompidou went before the National Assembly with offers of new concessions to the students. Virtually all

their original demands were met. (See also Page 3.)

Referring to the seizures and rioting last week in the Latin Quarter of Paris, the premier said the rebellion involves "individuals, backed by important financial means, with material adapted to street fighting, apparently belonging to an international organization."

MEETING DISRUPTED

"I do not think I am trying in thinking they are aiming at not only creating subversion in Western countries, but at causing trouble in Paris even at the moment when our capital has become the meeting place for peace in the Far East."

Closed during last week's rioting here, the Sorbonne reopened Tuesday, but students had no classes. They placed red-and-black flags in the hands of statues of Louis Pasteur and Victor Hugo, called for revolution and listened to a youth playing jazz on a grand piano set up in the Sorbonne's courtyard.

FREE PLEA

A "committee of occupation" ran the school with the help of sympathetic faculty members. The committee demanded that the Sorbonne be made a free university for all, that final exams be cancelled, that police be charged with brutality in putting down student protests, that the workers' and students' struggle be stepped up and that the university have an hour of time on the state-run television network.

In Strasbourg, students seized

the university buildings and proclaimed "The Autonomous University of Strasbourg."

Everywhere police remained in the background. Pompidou acknowledged there were some good reasons behind the disorder.

He said: "Already I have decided to call on a committee for reflection which will include representatives of professors, students, parents, teachers and personalities representing all the spiritual families which we will ask to furnish us with suggestions and proposals, if not solutions, at least experiments."

He said he thought one possibility was greater autonomy for the universities which now are under a tight centralized control from Paris.

Students with makeshift signs back striking clerks at Quamichan junior high

Union Agrees to Talks

Students Join Striking Clerks

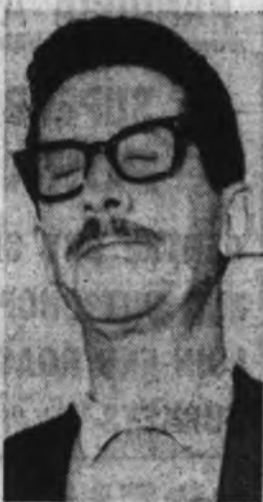

By JEAN MacGREGOR

DUNCAN—Students at a junior high school joined an office clerks picket line Tuesday, in the second day of a strike against Cowichan School Board.

Late Tuesday the union announced it will meet with the school board at the board's request, to try to find basis for a settlement.

The union continued to make arrangements to ensure minimum of hardship, by allowing transportation of Indian students and retarded children.

The union and the board will meet Thursday night in Duncan city hall.

Smith

No Buses

The bus drivers honored the line which had been set up by the striking women about 6:30 a.m. Tuesday.

No buses were available to bring the children to school.

Chairman Frumento stressed classes will carry on, and parents have been requested to co-operate by transporting their children to school during the strike.

Although parents seem to be co-operating wherever possible in taking students to the various schools in the district, many students are taking advantage of the situation to play hooky.

In front of at least one school, mento said CUPE would be invited to the meeting "to discuss the work stoppage and see if common ground exists for further negotiations."

The strike of 28 female clerks employed at the school board office and various schools in the district, started 11 a.m. Monday.

School board bus drivers, who are members of the IWA, brought the students to school Monday morning, and in the afternoon the pickets were withdrawn temporarily so the children could be taken back home.

Fire Exemption

The bus drivers, as well as janitors and maintenance men employed by the board, would not cross the legal picket line.

Mr. Smith said his union has given special consideration in several situations within the district:

● Fire protection authorities have been advised the union wishes them to maintain fire protection service at all times.

● Special permits will be issued to persons who are needed at schools for health or safety reasons.

● The superintendent of works has been advised the union will co-operate in allowing drinking water to be hauled daily to Tansor Elementary School.

● Maintenance men will be allowed to cross the picket line later in the week to set up chairs and carry out other work in preparation for the graduation ceremonies which will go on as scheduled Friday night.

● Anchor Transit Ltd. of Duncan has been issued a permit by CUPE to transport Indian students to public schools. The transit company has a contract with the federal government to transport these students.

Special consideration has been given by the union for the transportation of about 20 retarded children in this district. This is carried out by a Duncan taxi service through a contract with the school board.

There was considerable controversy Tuesday as to whether the graduation ceremonies might be postponed to June, but Cowichan Senior High school principal Dick Lendrum, said Tuesday afternoon the ceremonies will go on as scheduled.

Students in the week-night adult education program in the district, have been advised the strike will have no effect on the night school classes.

Wage Increase

The office clerks are disputing a refusal by the school board to accept a unanimous conciliation board award of 13.5 per cent wage increase for the 18 fulltime office employees in the school district.

The full-time employees are being supported in the strike by the 10 part-time office employees.

The union had previously asked for 15.5 per cent increase but the employees had unanimously agreed to the conciliation board's award.

Prior to the strike, the minimum wage for elementary school workers was $225 a month, and senior office workers were paid a starting salary of $280 a month.

Mr. Smith said the conciliation board's award would raise the minimum wage to $260 a month for elementary school office workers, and to $380 a month starting wage for the district's accounting clerk and the secretary to the district superintendent.

He stated, "This increase would still leave us about $40 a month behind wages being paid in other school districts on Vancouver Island."

Mr. Smith said Chairman Frumento had previously stated the school district's office employees were being paid wages comparable with salaries in other offices in the district.

Mr. Smith said, "This is true, but this is also the reason why the office employees joined CUPE. Many other office workers in the Duncan area are not unionized."

Campbell River Man Dies in Accident

A Campbell River girl ran three miles through bush in a vain effort to get help, after a boat overturned near Squamish.

Marie Hogue, 19, was treated for exhaustion and shock after her dramatic race to get help for two men who drowned.

Gary Walker, 21, Campbell River, Miss Hogue's fiancée, was one of those who died.

The other man was Carson Taylor, 31, Wood-fibre, who had a young family.

The accident occurred at Lovett Lake, 12 miles from Squamish, while the three were fishing.

Funeral service for Gary will be held in Vancouver Thursday.

LADYSMITH — A 65-year-old woman died in her blazing home Tuesday only short distance from North Oyster fire hall.

She was Mrs. Beatrice Vella Damant, whose house on Yellow Point Road about seven miles northeast of Ladysmith, was destroyed by the fire.

Mrs. Damant, a semi-invalid, was alone when the blaze broke out. Her husband, Harry, had left earlier to go to work at Nanaimo Lakes. Granddaughter Marlene, 15, was at school.

SMOKING BLAMED

Coroner Russ Inlander said later that the blaze may have been caused by Mrs. Damant smoking in bed. He said that she was apparently a steady smoker.

Her neighbor, Mrs. Audrey Scofield, reported the fire to her volunteer fireman husband, Bob, just about 9:30 a.m. Within three minutes a dozen firemen were on the scene but the house suddenly burst into flame just after they arrived.

The firemen were unable to do anything about the raging inferno.

HOT ASHES

Nothing was saved in the house. At about 2 p.m. Mrs. Damant's body, burned beyond recognition, was carried from the hot, and still smoldering, ashes. It lay 10 feet from the bed.

Mrs. Damant, who was suffering from a chronic illness, was believed to have been in soporific state when the fire occurred.

All that was left in the wreck age were pieces of metal from articles such as the refrigerator, stoves, a bicycle, bed and a few large pieces of timber.

AN INFERNO

Mrs. Scofield said at first they thought the fire was just smoke from burning garbage. "The next time we looked, in less than five minutes, the place was an inferno."

"This would have been just after 9:30 a.m. because the postman had just delivered the mail."

TOO LATE

Mr. Scofield and several men ran to the fire hall and turned in the alarm.

By the time they had backed the truck out, a dozen firemen had arrived. But it was too late.

When they arrived, the shell of the two-bedroom log and frame house was still intact, "but the whole inside was ash."

Heroic Firemen Praised

NANAIMO — Two firemen were commended for crawling into a burning home to try to save an elderly couple May 1. William Hyden, Cowichan Bay, and Duncan Simpson, Ladysmith, were praised by an inquest jury Tuesday night for their actions in a fire at 728 Nicol Street, Nanaimo.

James Herbert Webb, 67, and Joseph Webb, 54, died in the blaze.

The firemen were driven off the porch by an explosion of fire. Then they went back, crawled into the burning structure, into the living room and down a hall, before flames drove them out.

Strike Ballot Set For Woodworkers

A strike vote will be taken next week among 25,000 lumber workers on the British Columbia coast and Vancouver Island.

A statement by the International Woodworkers of America said voting will begin Tuesday and will be completed by the end of the week.

Lumber workers are seeking a 50 cent hourly increase in a new one-year contract from June 15. Employers, represented by Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., have not announced any offer.

The vote was ordered after conciliation talks were broken off by FIR.

Tax Increase For Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — An approximate rise of $30 in taxes for the average Port Alberni householder was foretold as the city council brought down its largest budget, reaching $3,627,132.

This, plus the school budget, brings total cost of operation for the year to slightly more than $5,600,000.

Tax rate for the amalgamated city will be 58.4 mills, up from the previous rate of 51½ mills in the former city of Port Alberni and the rate of 54 mills in former Alberni.

Some bright spots do appear, however.

The increased budget will allow for the hiring of an additional 5 permanent firemen, which will permit the city to place operation of an ambulance in the fire hall.

The hall was designed with provision for the ambulance to be centred there eventually.

The move comes as a result of long-standing public dissatisfaction with private operation of the ambulance.

Ald. Charles Blair, chairman of the Public Safety Committee, said hiring of the additional firemen July 1 will also bring the quota of firemen in ratio to population up to approved provincial standards, and should result in a worthwhile general decrease in fire insurance rates within the city.

Provision has also been made for the hiring of an additional RCMP constable by the new budget, by rearrangement of some clerical work.

Periodic foot patrols have been instigated, and will be accelerated, Mayor Fred Bishop said.

Strength of the police force has never kept pace with the rapid population expansion, and this too must be corrected, the mayor said.

The city's paving program is also to be stepped up, putting an end to long-term dust problems in some residential areas.

Said Mayor Bishop, "We begrudge the money we pay for taxes of all kinds, but a careful scrutiny will show we do receive good value for our municipal tax dollars, even though much remains to be done."

Smoke rises from ruins of home

Board Blasts Ugly School

COURTENAY — The school board is not happy with the color scheme of the Beaufort Home for Retarded Children.

The home, which was opened Sunday after being converted from an old army building at a cost of $45,000, is situated next door to the modern Georges P. Vanier School at Sandwick.

All that separates the two buildings is an open strip of land and an access road.

A report from the maintenance superintendent said that at the time the Beaufort Association was granted use of the building, it was clearly stated by the board and understood by all concerned that the color scheme would match, within reason, that of the Vanier School.

It was also agreed that the color scheme — beige walls and dark brown trim would be as inconspicuous as possible.

"It would now appear that some change of direction has occurred in the management of the project," the report said.

"The color scheme of white trim and black end walls tends to make this ugly structure as conspicuous as possible."

Trustee Winifred Buchanan said, "I think the Beaufort Association should be severely reprimanded, and I think the position should be rectified."

The board passed her motion that a letter be sent to the association asking if something could be done about the color scheme.

The board approved of the establishment of a district resource centre in the basement of the Courtenay Elementary School.

Director of Instruction John Walsh explained to the board that there are many resources in individual schools which were not used fully and which could be put into a district pool.

Other school districts had such centres and they operated most efficiently.

"The key to the whole plan would be the employment of an aide," Mr. Walsh said. "We can begin as soon as this is done."

Materials in the centre would include reference, library and professional books, maps, science kits, lesson units, globes, planetarium, films, transparencies, video and audio tapes, records, and slides.

Mr. Lucas said permission was sought by Henry Schellink, principal of Vanier School, to hold political presentations to Social Studies classes in Grade 11.

Mr. Lucas said the presentations would be temporary and would allow students to present their arguments on various political parties, particularly on the June 25 election.

The board approved of the classes, and some board members said they thoroughly endorsed the idea.

Softball Wins School Site

LAKE COWICHAN — The high school grounds will be used for softball games this season. Permission to use the grounds was granted by the Lake Cowichan school board.

The request came from the village council, after aldermen found Centennial Ball Park will not accommodate all baseball, softball and little league teams during the next few months.

Trustee Alec Walker said the question of temporary or permanent bleachers for the school grounds will have to be discussed further.

BUS GARAGES
The expenditure has not been included in this year's budget," he said, "and we do not know what the plans are for that area."

"If the bus garages are moved, the bleachers would be better situated in that area. Last year benches were brought in for the spectators and this worked very well."

Superintendent of works John Curran said his department had hoped to close the secondary school field this summer "to get it in shape for next year."

AN ALTERNATIVE
He added there was an alternative however. "We could look the gates Nov. 1, take out the goal posts and give the field a rest all winter."

Mr. Curran said the field could still be fertilized to a certain extent during the summer while the teams are using it.

Board Chairman Mrs. George Budden said, "I think the students do more damage playing on the field in the winter than the ball players do in the summer."

TRACK DANGER
Mr. Curran agreed the field recovers much quicker from use in the summer.

Trustee Walker said the only other item to be considered would involve the track at the school.

"The principal is a little worried the track will be spoiled," he said, "but if we emphasize this point and everyone is careful this will not happen."

"The softball teams used the field last year and there were no problems."

Nanaimo Negligence Trial Hears Details of Fatal Hunting Trip

NANAIMO — Ronald Norman Mottershaw, Royston, charged with criminal negligence causing the death of his 13-year-old stepson Edward George Lebus, admits he fired the fatal shot, but not that he was negligent.

The accident occurred Nov. 12, 1967, when the two were in a hunting party also including Danny 16, and Billy 12, sons of Mr. Mottershaw, and Arthur John Grant, Courtenay. They went to the Gold River area.

Mr. Grant testified he had just completed dressing the second kill of the day, and resumed hunting, when he saw Mr. Mottershaw waving to him. "I saw Ron up on the hill, waving and hollering."

"He said, 'Come quick, I shot Eddy,'" Mr. Grant said.

He further described the area, 12 miles east of Gold River, and of going to nearby Camp 10 to summon police and a rescue party.

The trial continues before Mr. Justice D. R. Verchere, with Victor Stephens, Courtenay, defence counsel, and Don Cunliffe as crown counsel.

In lower court action, Magistrate Eric Winch told Raymond Penarsky, 58, Ladiesmith, "Everybody in this town is paying for shoplifting."

Mr. Penarsky pleaded guilty and told court he could not understand why he had attempted to steal $23 worth of plants from Simpsons-Sears, except that he had been drinking heavily, and that he was broke before Mother's Day.

Court was told told Mr. Penarsky had taken the plants in several trips.

Magistrate Winch said, "You must be crawling inside," to which Mr. Penarsky nodded yes.

Mr. Penarsky admitted to having been employed for 25 years as a logger, and that his present wages exceed $25 a day. He was fined $230, 10 times the value of the stolen plants.

Melville Myrie Dexter, 47, Duncan pleaded guilty to hit and run, March 23. He admitted to hitting a car on Nicol Street; he checked the damage, and then drove off without leaving his name and address.

He said a woman in the car began to shout and carry on. Total damage was $150.

Magistrate Eric Winch fined Mr. Dexter $125 and prohibited him from driving for two months.

He told Mr. Dexter that the thing to do would have been to report the accident to the RCMP detachment if he hadn't wanted to stay at the scene of the accident.

Other members of the foursome were Al Cross of Sunnydale and Alex Smith, manager of the Qualicum Club.

Johnson, Faribault vs. Trudeau

Perrault 'Test' Of U.S. Control

CRANBROOK (CP) — New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas voiced a welcome Tuesday for Ray Perrault, who is expected to resign today as B.C. Liberal leader to oppose Douglas for the Burnaby-Seymour seat in the June 25 election.

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Perrault would be a good candidate who would provide Burnaby-Seymour voters with an opportunity to express their feelings about growing American control of the Canadian economy.

"Mr. Perrault is one of the Liberals who was most responsible at the Winnipeg (Liberals) conference for shooting down Walter Gordon's proposals for curtailing the growing American controls of our economy," he added.

MONTREAL (CP) — The pattern for the June 25 election campaign fight in Quebec was set Tuesday by Prime Minister Trudeau, Premier Johnson and Marcel Faribault, the Quebec premier's constitutional and economics adviser — who announced he will be a Progressive Conservative candidate.

As Faribault and Conservative leader Stanfield made the announcement here, Trudeau was launching a vigorous attack on the Johnson-Faribault theories of international relationships.

Stanfield and Faribault make announcement

CAMPAIGN '68

After the announcement was made, Johnson commented on it by threatening in Quebec City to hit the hustings if the federal Liberals continue what he called a racist and anti-Quebec campaign.

Trudeau said Johnson's theories could lead to the "disintegration" of Canada and that those of Faribault could lead to the "disintegration of major international agencies."

INTERNATIONAL ROLE

Speaking at a luncheon organized by the Chambre de Commerce de Montreal the prime minister said Johnson believes that Quebec has an international role to fulfill and Faribault claims that the province must become full members of the great international organizations like UNESCO.

This meant that Quebec could act like a sovereign state and that each province could ignore the federal government and have an independent foreign policy in those fields within its jurisdiction without consulting the federal government.

CONTRADICTIONS

The first consequence of this theory was that Canada could have several foreign policies, each one contradicting the other.

If Quebec could undertake direct relations with Gabon, Ontario could wish to have the same with Rhodesia, against which country the federal government had taken certain restrictive measures.

British Columbia could decide to establish consular relations with Peking, capital of mainland China which Canada does not recognize.

SEVERAL VOICES

"If Canada has several contradictory foreign policies that means the disintegration of Canada because then one country speaks with several voices."

The consequence of Faribault's theory was that international organizations like the United Nations and UNESCO would swell beyond measure until they completely disintegrated because the 10 provinces could each send to them one representative in addition to the representative of Canada.

NOT DESIRABLE

The United States thus would want to send 50 representatives, Switzerland, Brazil and the other large federal states would do the same leading to the disintegration of these organizations, "something that is not desirable and certainly is not sought by those who hold this theory."

Johnson's theory would in short, involve the disintegration of international law. France would be able to invite to conferences Mauritius, whose population is French-speaking but which belongs to Great Britain, or Louisiana or the inhabitants of Belgium known as Walloons, who speak French.

FRENCH TERRITORIES

The Organization of American States could invite to its meetings of the island of St. Pierre and Miquelon, Guadeloupe and Martinique, all of which are French territories located near the North and South American continents.

"These examples," said Trudeau, "all seem radical except when applied to us."

"In other countries these absurdities are unthinkable, but they are possible here because the constitution is not clear in that area."

ONE ADDRESS

Trudeau said foreign policy could not be fragmented. International policy was a specific activity accorded to the central government.

"When a foreign country wants to talk to Canada there is only one address: Ottawa. There is no need for the street number; Ottawa, Canada, is sufficient."

Johnson cited a speech at Burnaby, during the weekend by Manpower Minister Jean Marchand who described

Freed Miners Joke

Hours Late For Supper

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — A tiny bucket-like hoist completed a four-hour rescue operation shortly before 9 p.m. ADT Tuesday, bringing the last of 49 coalminers safely to the surface of the Drummond Coal Co. mine here.

The men, cold and damp but unhurt, had been trapped by a large fall of stone as they were travelling out of the mine at the end of their shift. They walked about a mile underground to reach an air shaft through which they escaped—three at a time—in the hoisting device.

The rescue ended anxious hours for the residents of this Pictou County town. The miners themselves seemed in a cave-in at a precious stone mine at Hualien.

One said "there's nothing to it—we're all ok."

The mine is expected to be out of production for about one week.

Hundreds of townspeople and residents of nearby New Glasgow and Stellarton gathered near a fan house at the top of the air shaft as the men were brought up, about three every 15 minutes.

The fall of stone occurred at considerable distance from where the men were working.

Past Disasters Near

The pit is the last working coal mine in this Pictou County town of 4,000, about 100 road miles northeast of Halifax. It employs about 100, including surface workers.

The Pictou field is about 75 miles east of the Cumberland coalfield, struck by major disasters in 1956 and 1958. Thirty-nine men were killed in No. 4 colliery in Springhill in 1956 and 75 died in No. 2 colliery in 1958. Both were subsequently closed.

The miners had been on their way out of the mine by way of the main slope when the fall occurred. Although they were some distance from the fall, they knew immediately something was wrong because the underground power failed and the electric "man rakes" on which they were travelling ground to a halt.

Hundreds of relatives, friends and neighbors, flocked to the mine fearing "another Springhill."

They were reassured, however, when the first miners came to the surface and explained there had been no injuries, and it was only a matter of time before they were all safely out.

"What's all the excitement about?" miner Fred Doucette asked. "There's nothing out of the ordinary happening. It was just a routine fall and all the men knew they had the second way out."

'All Bombing Must Stop'

Restraint Refused

PARIS (AP) — A spokesman for North Vietnam's chief envoy at the Vietnam peace talks said Tuesday "no ransom will be paid to the American aggressor" for an end to all U.S. attacks on the North.

Thus the North Vietnamese diplomat, Xuan Thuy, made known a refusal to yield to U.S. requests that North Vietnam show restraint in return for a complete bombing pause.

"The United States must stop all bombing," his spokesman Nguyen Van Sao, told reporters as the negotiations took a break after the opening session Monday. (See also Page 18.)

Meanwhile, Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, the American negotiator, said he has been "hard at work with a microscope" going over Thuy's opening policy statement of Monday.

"We have got to find some basis on which to move ahead."

Comment and action bearing on the Paris talks came from these capitals:

● In Washington, President Johnson acknowledged Harriman's team faces "very hard negotiations."

● In Moscow, the state radio claimed Communist Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung told Thuy he considered "it was erroneous that Hanoi agreed to meet" the Americans. So far, Peking's information organs have blacked out all word of the talks.

The negotiators today go into the second round of their talks in France's International Conference Centre.

The Hanoi spokesman also asserted it was a U.S. "slander" to say North Vietnamese were fighting in South Vietnam. Asked about this, Harriman replied that the presence of North Vietnamese in South Vietnam has been established — some have been captured — and added: "I don't know why they keep up this fiction."

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — Rescue workers are continuing efforts to save 23 men trapped in a cave-in at a precious stone mine at Hualien.

Police said that, if the men are brought out alive, they will be taken directly to jail for entering the mine without permission. The mine owner filed a robbery charge against the men.

Burmese Cyclone Kills 837

AKYAB, Burma (Reuters) — The death toll in Burma's worst-known storm disaster rose to 837 Tuesday as government relief parties pushed into five towns along the devastated Bay of Bengal coast.

Casualty and damage reports are still awaited from other regions along a 20-mile stretch of coast struck Friday by a cyclone with winds of more than 120 miles an hour, plus 15-foot tidal waves.

Pickets Block Rally

By IAN STREET

Legislative Reporter
VANCOUVER — Bill 33 became the dominant topic at a Social Credit election rally which was held outdoors here Tuesday night after picketers barred entrance to a nearby high school auditorium.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson took the spotlight away from Premier Bennett and other cabinet ministers as the meeting, attended by 735 shivering Vancouver South residents, wound up in less than an hour. (See also Page 24, 36.)

The government's controversial mediation act was brought up when a heckler called on Mr. Peterson to talk about the strike of custodian engineers which had tied up 22 local high schools.

"If that's why we're here tonight," Mr. Peterson said.

Major Issue

He said Bill 33 was a major issue in the provincial by-election because "this much-maligned piece of legislation" was designed to bring stability to labor-management relations in B.C.

Only the government in the legislature, and Social Credit candidate George Wainborn in the by-election contest, supported the bill, the minister reminded the audience.

"Those who opposed it — the NDP and the Liberals — must of necessity be in favor of a monopoly of labor or a monopoly of management being able to paralyze the economy of this province," Mr. Peterson said.

It's Simple

"Those who oppose this bill must of necessity say the government has no right to protect the interest of the public or the welfare of the people of this province.

"It's as simple as that." A heckler in the crowd shouted, "And H. R. MacMillan!"

Mr. Peterson said the government represented no pressure group, but rather all the people, "including labor and management."

"If you want government by big labor, or by a teacher federation that seems to have a lot of money to spend these days, then vote for the opposition.

"But if you want government that represents all the people and will deal fairly with all segments of the economy, I would suggest you vote next Tuesday for George Wainborn."

Nebraska Kennedy's Crusher

Sweeping victory in Nebraska Democratic presidential primary was scored Tuesday by Robert Kennedy, shown during brief morning campaign foray into Davenport, Iowa. He crushed chief rival Eugene McCarthy, getting 53 per cent of votes to McCarthy's 31. On Republican side, Richard Nixon scored solid 70 per cent to surprising 23 per cent for Ronald Reagan and only 5 per cent for Nelson Rockefeller. Next primary is in Oregon May 28.

Demands Being Met

Students Take Over French Universities

PARIS (AP) — Flying the red-and-black flags of rebellion and anarchy, students occupied most of France's 18 universities Tuesday in a seizure that Premier Georges Pompidou called an international plot and a "trial of our civilization."

Shaken by the rebellion and a censure motion, Pompidou went before the National Assembly with offers of new concessions to the students. Virtually all

their original demands were met. (See also Page 31.)

Referring to the seizures and rioting last week in the Latin Quarter of Paris, the premier said the rebellion involves "individuals, backed by important financial means, with material adapted to street fighting, apparently belonging to an international organization."

"I do not think I am straying in thinking they are aiming at not only creating subversion in Western countries, but at causing trouble in Paris even at the moment when our capital has become the meeting place for peace in the Far East."

Closed during last week's rioting here, the Sorbonne reopened Tuesday, but students had no classes. They placed red-and-black flags in the hands of statues of Louis Pasteur and Victor Hugo, called for revolution and listened to a youth playing jazz on a grand piano set up in the Sorbonne's courtyard.

At the University of Strasbourg, students seized the university buildings and proclaimed "The Autonomous University of Strasbourg."

Everywhere police remained in the background.

Pompidou acknowledged there were some good reasons behind the disorder.

He said: "Already I have decided to call on a committee for reflection which will include representatives of professors, students, parents, teachers and personalities representing all the spiritual families which we will ask to furnish us with suggestions and propose, if not solutions, at least experiments."

He said he thought one possibility was greater autonomy for the universities which now are under a tight centralized control from Paris.
